Plattekill Officials Might Have to Bear All the Legal Liability

PLATTEKILL — The lawsuits are piling up against the Town of Plattekill and five of its elected officials.

Earlier this week a $2.5 million legal suit was filed against the town, the supervisor and four town board members by Dutchess Sanitation Inc. of Poughkeepsie. Now, says Harold L. Mangold, attorney for the Poughkeepsie garbage firm, two additional suits, each for another $2.5 million, have been filed. All three were filed together as three causes of action.

The first suit alleges that the town's enforcement of a local ordinance prohibiting the disposal of garbage from outside the town is an "interference with the use of property," which has affected Dutchess Sanitation's ability to operate its business.

The second suit charges the town and representatives named with "inducing or causing a breach of contract." The third action alleges "conspiracy to commit fraudulent or illegal actions resulting in damages."

Named in the suits, filed in behalf of Joseph Fiorello, president of Dutchess Sanitation, were Town Supervisor Dominick Ferrante and four members of the town board. They have until May 20 to file answering papers in Ulster County Supreme Court.

Mangold notes, however, that the suits have been filed against the people named as both elected representatives and individuals.

"If it turns out that the actions they performed were not carried out as authorized in the positions they hold," he says, "they could be personally liable."

In that event, the town could not pay for their defense or hire attorneys to defend them. They would have to retain their own lawyers.

The battle of the Plattekill dump has been the subject of much controversy in recent weeks. The local landfill, owned by Dutchess Sanitation, was closed by court order last week. Fiorello was arraigned in Plattekill Town Court earlier this month and legal actions and court hearings have been held on several fronts from the local to the state to the U.S. District level.

Scoop Scores Rocky

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry Jackson, accusing Nelson Rockefeller of the "lowest form of inhumanity," is demanding that the vice president repudiate unequivocally a report that he accused the presidential candidate of having a communist on his staff.

The flap stemmed from a story in Wednesday's Atlanta Journal reporting that Rockefeller told a group of Georgia Republicans in an off-the-record meeting that a communist had infiltrated Jackson's Senate staff and that Dr. Dorothy Fosdick, also a Jackson staffer, had worked with Alger Hiss on forming the United Nations in the 1940s.

Favors Cunningham

NEW YORK — A law that would have requirsd Democratic State Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham to testify without immunity before a Bronx grand jury or lose his job has been declared unconstitutional by a federal court.

At the same time, however, Bronx Democratic District leader John A. Whalen was indicted on charges of destroying evidence in an effort to thwart the grand jury probe.

Paltz Prof Hit By Fund Charge

NEW PALTZ — Kent A. Reeves, professor of elementary education at the State University College at New Paltz and director of the college's 375-acre field campus at Ashokan, has been "suspended" as field camp director, pending an "investigation," college sources confirmed Thursday.

The investigation is said to involve charges of mismanagement of funds by Reeves.

The camp director had been relieved of his duties following "certain allegations" pertaining to financial mismanagement and possible embezzlement, according to the colleges public realtions office..

Camp Director Relieved of Job

The camp overseen by Reeves until his suspension is used by SUC New Paltz students for both educational and recreation. Outdoor art and other classes are held there; an experimental homestead farm is operated on ths site; picnicking, swimming and biking are among the recreational pursuits.

The Ashokan field campus is operated un der the auspices of the Faculty-Student Association (FSA) at the college, a non-profit group chartered under state law as part of the college administrative structure. To the FSA has fallen the responsibility of investigating the allegations brought against Reeves.

Frank Tramontano, budget controller and chairman of the board of directors of FSA declined to go into details on the charges against Reeves until a committee has been formed to talk to the suspended director. With the college currently in Easter recess, no committee action is expected before May 11.

"We want to solve it within ourselves," said Tramontano, while admitting that questions have been posed as to whether FSA "has the right to investigate the charges" under Reeves' contract.

That contract created further hubbub on campus when college spokesmen confirmed Reeves would continue under full salary as an environmental education instructor. The complexities are further compounded by a financial arrangement that will allow Reeves, at least for the time being, to continue drawing his salary as director of the camp he ran for 11 years but no longer heads.

Tramontano says Reeves' salary is paid on a shared basis. One-third of his salary comes from the education budget since he is tenured and teaches environmental education one day a week. Two-thirds of his salary is paid out of the student affairs (personnel) budget for his work as camp director.

What that means exactly on a yearly basis is that Reeves draws $12,000 from student affairs; $6,000 from the educational department as a teacher; and $2,700 from the Faculty-Student Association as payment for rent.

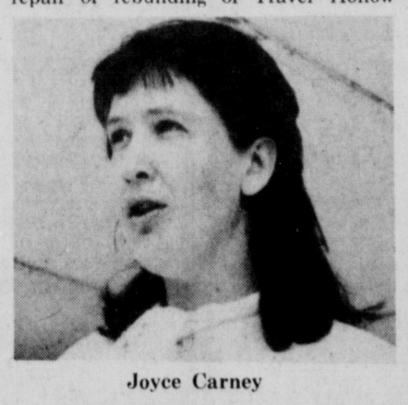

Since those sums hardly add up to a big jump from directing finances to mismanagement of funds, the FSA investigating committee will apparently be delving elsewhere. And, if the charges are lodged in any area, allegations of mismanagement and possible embezzlement would have to come in the specific category of the camp's income, which is about $140,000 a year.

The camp Reeves had been running is located in the Town of Olive, where the suspended director formerly served as Town Democratic chairman. A resident of Tonche Terrace, Shokan, he had been appointed to the party in the spring of 1973 and served until the summer of 1975.

Traver Hollow Bridge Residents:

'Them's Fighting Words'

OLIVE — New York State Supreme Court might think that New York City is proceeding at a reasonable pace in the repair or rebuilding of Traver Hollow

Joyce Carney

Bridge which links West Shokan and Boiceville, but "them's fighting words" to residents on either side of the span who must travel 14 miles instead of two to reach each other.

"We won't let up," Joyce Carney, a West Shokan ambulance squad leader told the Freeman this week, referring not only to the town's court fight against the city, but its organized media blitz intended to move the city to action.

New York City officials declared recently that it would be three years before the bridge is reopened. Although several New York City newspapers and a television station have aired Olive's problems, so far nothing concrete in the way of a commitment from the city has been forthcoming.

A week ago Robert Low of the city's Environmental Protection Agency came to town in a spirit of neighborliness but made no promises.

Former Olive Supervisor Lester Davis, who owns Shokan's only store, feels the city will move on the project eventually but will take its time."

Retired New York City employe Walter Long said he knew the bridge needed repairing 15 years ago but "all the city did was patch it."

He doubts the city will do anything now. "They're going to let us hang," he predicted.

Acknowledging that New York has money troubles of its own, retired school teacher Hope Miller of West Shokan nevertheless sees the situation as a "foolish imposition."

Walter Long

And an imposition it is—on the school children who must travel 28 extra miles a day, on the residents who would like to use the now inaccessible stores, library and meetings rooms, on anyone who drives a car.

Economic impact is also felt by the school system which estimates it will cost an additional $20,000 this year for transportation, by the highway department which must put in considerably more mileage and by residents who are burning up gasoline as well as energy in the long travels.

Hope Miller

The bridge closing has also produced a worry in that fire protection and ambulance services are hampered. Mrs.

That Ban Doesn't Cover Shad Fishing

KINGSTON—Commercial shad fishing in the Hudson River remains exempt from a Feb. 25 ban on commercial fishing by the Department of Environmental Conservation which is attempting to determine levels of the toxic chemical PCB in all fish in the river.

Just Continue Fishing for Now

A headline in Wednesday's Daily Freeman which read "No Shad, No Bass, No Herring," was erroneous in regard to the shad. The story noted, however, that the PCB content of 20 shad collected this month in the Tappan Zee Bridge area ranged from 1.2 parts per million to 8.9 parts, according to DEC Commissioner Ogden Reid. The federal Food and Drug Administration has set five parts per million as the limit for human consumption.

There has been no indication from Reid on when a final decision will be made on shad fishing, but Eugene Van Steenburg of 549 Delaware Avenue, a local shad fisherman for some 40 years, told the Freeman that Reid told him and other shad fishermen to continue fishing.

"He met with us at Bard College about three weeks ago," Van Steenburg told the Freeman. "I asked him whether I should buy new nets for this season. He told me to go ahead.' He told us the shad are safe to eat until we are notified differently." Van Steenburg said he has had no word from Reid's department since the Bard college meeting.

The fisherman also feels the shad scare over PCB's migjt be out of proportion. "They've found no PCBs in the shad row (eggs) and that's what we sell the most," said Van Steenburg.

Carey's Open House

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The traditional yearly open house at the Executive Mansion has been set for this Sunday, and Gov. Hugh Carey says he's looking forward to meeting his neighbors.

A spokesman for the governor said Carey and his children will be on hand to greet the public from 2 to 4 p.m. No formal invitations are required.

Carey moved the date of the open house from the traditional New Year's day to spring, so guests could tour the grounds of the mansion as well as the interior.

"My children and I are looking forward to meeting as many of our neighbors as can come," the governor said in a statement issued by his office. "Not only our 'next door neighbors' in the immediate area of the house, but neighbors from the entire Capital District."

Fruit punch and cookies will be served.

The announcement said members of the news media are welcome to the open house, but it was termed "a social event and no interviews are being scheduled."

Probation, School Budget Saugerties GOP Topics

SAUGERTIES—Reports on the Ulster County Department of Probation and the proposed new Saugerties Central School District budget were given to the Town of Saugerties Republican Club by guest speakers at a recent meeting.

Stephen Morris, probation director, explained the procedure of his office with inmates at the Ulster County Jail and the possible savings that accrue to taxpayers if it is not considersd necessary to incarcerate an alleged offender, comparing the cost of $22.50 per day for a prisoner and 59 cents a day for a person on parole.

Saugerties School Superintendent Daniel Lee, assisted by Robert Moser, said that the budget reflects only a 2.2 per cent increase and if it should be rejected by voters May 5 an austerity budget would be applied in the district.

Also filing reports on subjects of local concern were Town Supervisor Frank Greco on landfill recycling; County Legislator Charles Scala on the county hiring fresze; County Legislator Alice Tipp on the Youth in Government program; and Bruce Dederick of the Republican Club on a planned May 15 dinner-dance at the Flamingo Restaurant.

—School Races—

Candidate Nights

KINGSTON—The League of Women Voters and a federation of PTO organizations will be sponsoring separate candidates nights next week preparatory to the Kingston Schools Consolidated annual school board elections on May 4. The Edson, Lake Katrine, Clifford Miller, J. Watson Bailey and Chambers Schools parent-teacher organizations will co-sponsor a candidates night on Tuesday, April 27, at 8 p.m. at the Edson School Auditorium on Merilina Avenue. Moderator will be James B. Thompson, former news director at Station WGHQ. Each candidate will be allowed a five minute statement. Questions from the floor will follow.

The League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster will hold their candidate night at George Washington School on

. Wall Street at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 29. Candidates will offer position statements followed by rebuttal. Questions from the floor will also be allowed.

There are five candidates for the two vacancies on the board: Ronald Meyer, an incumbent seeking reelection; Joseph Feraca, a former board member, Len Cane, a candidate last year, Harold Van Allen, a former member of the Hurley School Board and William Jackson, chairman of the Ulster County Conservative Party.

Numbers Have It

KINGSTON—The latest state population projections for school enrollment in the Kingston Schools Consolidated District show a figure of 2,700 high school students for the 1979-80 school year, a figure some 400 students below projections in 1972.

Joseph Feraca, a candidate for a seat on the city school board, says that's even more reason for not building a new high school as he now advocates. Feraca also points out that those 1972 projections figured on 2,662 students this year for Kingston High School this year when the actual figure is 2,200.

Feraca cites a number of other reasons for not building a new high school: the economy, tax assessment reductions against the school district, the "very real" possibility that the district will have to pay an additional $3 million in excludables, the state's freezing of school aid formulas.

"Therefore I propose," said the former school board president, "that if the library property next to the high school is purchased, at least four to six classes could be made available in the main building by moving the library that is in Hall-B, the library annex and the resource classes in the school. With the use of 9th period, and along with some refurbishing that would take this district through its critical time without interfering with the education of our students or disrupting our neighborhood school system." he said.

Jackson on New School

KINGSTON—William Jackson, candidate for election to the Kingston Schools consolidated Board of Education on May 4, citing a drop in enrollment of almost 200 students at Kingston High School this year, says that proponents of a new high school "cannot justify their stand with present school population projections."

Stated Jackson, "the school population in the Kingston Consolidated District is decreasing and will continue to decrease in the forseeable future. From the beginning of this school year to February the high school enrollment has dropped by 189 students. It appears that the September enrollment will show a further decrease."

Jackson went on to criticize the position that money can be a cure-all to education problems. "The unyielding stand of those who advocate a new school is probably based on the erroneous theory that the more money you pump into an educational system the more education you receive. The opposite seems to be true. As more and more money is spent for education in the nation, the educational level of high school graduates is decreasing." Jackson then cited cost per student figures that show New York 32 per cent hihger gher than New Jersey and 65 per cent higher than California.

"The Kingston City Consolidated have been offering a good education to our students and we should strive to continue this performance," he said. "To degrade and discredit or our school system by insisting quality education is dependent upon a new and luxurious high school is not in the best interests of our students or taxpayers," Jackson said.

Martin in Saugerties

SAUGERTIES — Robert Martin, a 14-year resident of Saugerties, has announced his candidacy for Saugerties School Board for a three-year term.

Philosophically, he would like to arrive at a wellrounded, consistent plan for each school year, "so we will have an action board." He noted that without the cooperation of the teachers, school board, administration and citizens of Saugerties, the people who suffer the most will be the students of the schools.

Martin is involved in community activities such as the town's recreation committee, cub scouts, Mt. Marion Plattekill Reformed Church and Saugerties Athletic Association. He is past president of Saugerties Jaycees, past treasurer and elder of his church and has participated in the annual Boy Scout fund-raising drives.

Golf, auto repair and basketball are his hobbies. He resides with his wife and two children at 21 Appletree Drive.

Betty Kasper in Race

BOICEVILLE—Betty Kasper has declared her candidacy for the Onteora Board of Education, stating,"The citizens of the community have every right to guide the district in its attempt to educate all the children."

The mother of seven children, all of whom attend district schools, Mrs. Kasper expressed several of her beliefs in a news release, including one that "educational spending must directly affect the students and not be used for bureaucratic expansion or other frills."

Her experience in the district, apart from through her children, is as president of the Bennett Elementary School PTA; member of the Onteora Citizens Committee; service on the steering committee that organized the Parent Teacher Student Association at the junior high school; and as a voluntser teacher aide at Bennett School.

Mrs. Kasper's experience in preparing the PTA budget and her involvement in fund raising projects, she feels, underscore sound fiscal management and her teaching experiences at Our Lady of LaSalette Church in Boiceville, she said, have given her sensitivity to the needs of educators.

"I believe that students and especially parents must become more involved in school operations," quoted Mrs. Kasper,and she obviously intends to do just that.

Do You Litter? . . . It Costs You, Too

ALBANY — A renewed anti-litter effort by motorists is being urged by State Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler in view of the $2.9 million it cost taxpayers last year to have the department remove litter on New York's 14,000 miles of state highways.

"The cost is up from $2.5 million a few years ago," Schuler said.

Since the DOT budget for maintenance is more restricted than ever, and because litter can be dangerous to motorists, as well as being unsightly and, in view of the fact that Saturday is "National Keep America Beautiful Day", Schuler urges habitual use of proper containers for discards.

The commissioner suggested that money that is now spent on litter pickup, could be far better spent on highway safety and driving convenience.

Catskill Forum Set

HOBART — The state's proposed system of wild, scenic and recreational rivers, will be under discussion at the May 15 meeting of Catskill Forum of the Catskill Center for Conservation and Development to be held at 10 a.m. at the Catskill Center, Hobart.

Guest speakers will include Norman Van Valkenburgh and Nathan Baskous, regional directors of the Department of Environmental Conservation for the Catskills and Nicholas Barth of the DEC staff at Albany.

The panel will discuss the purpose of the program and report on the recommendations of 10 citizens advisory committees that have been established to help the DEC evaluate studies to include portions of 10 streams in the state system.

Nearly 205 miles of waterways are involved, including six Catskill rivers, among them, the Esopus.

UCCC Science Lecture

STONE RIDGE — "Science in Colonial America," will be the topic of a Bicentennial lecture Monday at 2:30 p.m. at Ulster County Community College to be given by Lawrence Matson, assistant professor of earth science.

Sponsored by the Bicentennial Committee at the college, the program will be held in the college lounge in John Vanderlyn Hall on the Stone Ridge campus and is open to the public without charge.

Matson received his BS degree from State University College at Cortland and his master's degree from Case Western Reserve University.

W. Hurley Library Quiz

WEST HURLEY — As part of the continuing celebration of America's 200th birthday, the West Hurley Library Board has developed its own "Bicentennial Quiz."

Designed to promote interest in both the United States and New York State, the quiz consists of a series of questions about the colony of New York from the Revolutionary War to the present.

Contestants, who must be members of the West Hurley Library, can win up to $45 worth of books of their own choice. Entry blanks, and the contest rules, are available at the library.

Newburgh Educator To R.I.

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — William T. O'Hara, president of Mount St. Mary College in Newburgh, N.Y., this summer will become Bryant College's fifth president.

School officials Wednesday said O'Hara will arrive Aug. 1 to succeed Dr. Harry Evarts who resigned last spring, bowing to trustee pressure after a student strike and faculty protest concerning his administration.

William P. Robinson Jr., chairman of the college governing board, called O'Hara "eminently qualified to carry forward Bryant's educational goals. I believe he will work with faculty and administrators to inspire our students for leadership roles in their undergraduate careers."

O'Hara, 43, has been president of Mount St. Mary's for four years. He also teaches constitutional law. From 1967 to 1972 he was director of the Southeastern campus of the University of Connecticut.

Bryant is a four-year college specializing in business education. It has an enrollment of 2,600 undergraduates, nearly 2,000 evening students and 600 graduate students.

Attica Windup With Bid for Disciplinary Action, Clemency

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Five years of investigations into the 1971 Attica prison riot apparently ended Thursday with a recommendation by Special Prosecutor Alfred J. Scotti that disciplinary action be taken against more than a dozen state police and prison guards and clemency granted several inmates.

"It's come to an end", Scotti said after submitting his recommendations to Gov. Hugh Carey and other state officials Thursday.

He said the disciplinary action against the law officers was warranted because of the "unjustified gunfire" during the retaking of the prison and the "abysmal failure" to undertake a proper investigation immediately thereafter.

Scotti also proposed that the governor grant varying degrees of clemency to several of the 10 inmates convicted of crimes related to the four-day prison rebellion.

Forty-three died during the September 1971 riot, including 10 hostages and 29 inmates killed by bullets fired by state police or correctional personnel in the retaking of the prison.

Noting that "although a substantial period of time has elapsed since the events at Attica," Scotti said, "it is our opinion that any departmental disciplinary action would still be timely."

However, Carl Gray, executive director of the union representing 5,000 correction officers, said, "If the law says that someone brought on trial 4½ years after an incident can't get a fair trial, the same principal would apply to a law enforcement officer. He deserves the same protection as anyone else."

Gray said the state's contract with Council 82 of the Security and Law Enforcement Council bars anyone from being brought up on disciplinary charges more than a year after an incident occurred.

Scotti was appointed by Carey last Dec. 16 after allegations that the original Attica investigation had overlooked wrongdoing by law enforcement personnel.

In recommending the dropping of further prosecutorial action against law enforcement offices last Feb. 26, Scotti told a state supreme court justice he had found that "the unavailability of evidence required for successful prosecution ... was caused by flagrant deficiencies in the state police investigation of the retaking."

"The conduct described is criminal conduct, notwithstanding the fact that these men were not indicted," Scotti said.

He recommended disciplinary action especially as a result of what he called the "abysmal failure" of the state police to undertake proper investigative action immediately following the retaking.

Scotti's findings were immediately challenged by Pat Carroll, President of the 3,200-member State Police Benevolent Association. Carroll noted that two separate grand juries had rejected Scotti's charges against the law officers and had failed to recommend any disciplinary action.

"Who is Scotti trying to kid?" Carroll demanded.

Scotti's report was not made public, but a summary was issued by the governor's public relations office.

Scotti said his recommendations completed his work in the Attica matter. The two grand juries have been dismissed and Scotti said Thursday, "There's nothing left to be done."

The recommendations pertaining to troopers were forwarded to Carey and to William G. Connelie, the state police superintendent. A report regarding prison guards was presented to Benjamin Ward, state correctional services commissioner.

On Scotti's recommendation earlier this year, judges dismissed all charges against 45 former inmates and a state trooper, the only law enforcement officer charged.

Eight other cases involving law enforcement officers which two special grand juries had voted not to indict, were not resubmitted because Scotti said "available evidence" did not warrant such action.

Sixty-three men were originally charged in connection with the nation's bloodiest prison uprising, but only two former inmates were convicted of riot-related crimes after jury trials.

Eight pleaded guilty to reduced charges, four were found innocent by juries, three died with charges pending and one man, Mario Gonzales, has been declared a fugitive with charges still pending for intentional killing of another inmate.

A spokesman for the governor said the names of the inmates for which Scotti recommended clemency and of the troopers and guards would be made public only if the special prosecutor's recommendations were implemented.

Victory for Cunningham But Bronx Leader Not So Lucky

NEW YORK (UPI) — A law that would have required Democratic State Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham to testify without immunity before a Bronx grand jury or lose his job has been declared unconstitutional by a federal court.

A special three-judge panel unanimously ruled Thursday that Section 22 of the state election law violated Cunningham's Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination.

Meanwhile, Bronx Democratic district leader John A. Whalen was indicted on charges of destroying evidence in an effort to thwart the grand jury probe.

The indictment said the grand jury, empaneled under Special State Prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, was trying to determine whether Whalen and Cunningham "had taken a bribe from an individual who had been appointed and is serving as a judge of the New York City Criminal Court."

It said the grand jury subpoenaed the records of the Regency Chauffeur Service Inc., which Whalen heads, to find out if the defendant and Cunningham had used the firm to "launder" the bribe.

However, after failing to block the subpoena, Whalen "tampered with and suppressed these records by concealing them and destroying them," according to the indictment.

Nadjari has accused Cunningham of being "at the center of the corrupt marketplace of judgeships" in The Bronx.

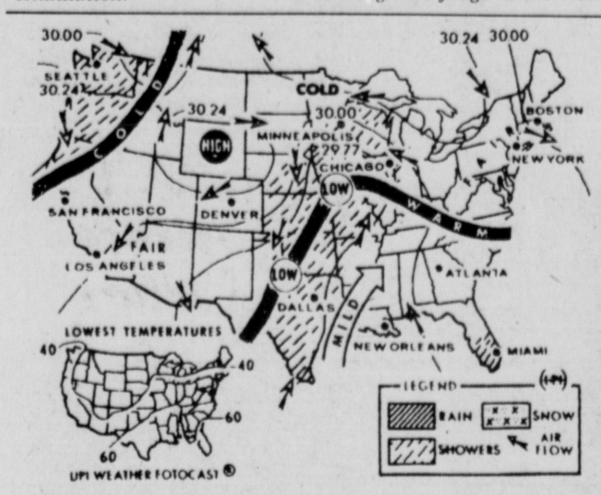

In its ruling, the federal court said that Cunningham may be compelled to testify "on pain of imprisonment or fine for refusal to testify" if he is granted immunity against prosecution.

U.S. District Judge Charles Tenney said "in striking down the statute that would penalize Cunningham for the exercise of his constitutional rights, we do not condone corruption in public office if and when it is shown to exist."

Cunningham, who is also the Bronx Democratic chairman, refused to sign a waiver of immunity when he appeared on April 5 before the grand jury and was not questioned.

He therefore faced automatic dismissal from both state and county party chairmanships under the state statute now declared unconstitutional.

Cunningham was re-elected Bronx County Chairman on Monday and is up for reelection today as state Chairman.

Local Reaction on Traver Hollow

Carney also pointed out that New York City is not maintaining its roads in the area adequately and ambulances and fire trucks must, of necessity, travel at lesser speeds because of poor road conditions.

Robert Platz, a summer resident who plans to live in Olive all year round, expressed the concern of many of Olive's senior citizens who are worried about the time it takes to get a sick person to the hospital.

Davis feels the city's priorities are wrong, pointing out that other bridges in the area are being repaired by the city but Traver Hollow "the main one has been let go."

Library circulation is down one-third, according to Mrs. Rosalie Burgher, librarian for Olive Free Library, partly because the schools are on the other side of the bridge. She said one of the school librarians has been carrying books back and forth for the students every two weeks.

"A detour is desperately needed," many residents feel, including Mrs. Carney, who has expressed interest in an alternate route, advanced recently by the county and the state. Each said it would provide expertise and the county would provide the labor and the loan of a bridge "if" the City of New York picks up the tab.

The urgency of a detour was driven home further by Mrs. Carney as she explained that the average ambulance trip from Olive to a hospital in Kingston involves about 52 to 60 miles round trip depending upon point of pickup. And, the ambulance responds to an average of 150 to 200 miles a year.

Penny Wise, Pound Foolish

It's not enough that court cases in Ulster County are well behind schedule. Unwise frugality on the part of our county legislature caused still another delay early this week.

Because of construction at the county jail and on Wall Street outside the court house, County Judge Raymond J. Mino was forced to delay, a trial because 1.) open windows in the court room had to be closed due to the construction noises and 2.) when the windows were closed, the lack of air conditioning made it unbearable with temperatures outside above 80,and more than that, in the court room.

This delay wouldn't have occurred if the legislature had acted on a resolution at its April 8 meeting to spend up to $450 for a public address system to be used in the court room while construction is taking place outside.

Instead, the resolution was referred to committee and it could might just stay in committee until construction is finished and there will be no need for a PA system.

Those lawmakers who are overzealous in saving money at the wrong time, should get this resolution out of committee and pass it at the next meeting. When the public address system has outlived its usefulness at the court house, it can be used at the county's parks. In other words, the money will be well spent.

Lauds 'Help Article'

Dear Editor:

You are to be congratulated, for publishing articles such as found on Page 11 of today's Freeman. (April 16) The section entitled: "Growing Older - Heart Attack! How Others Can Help" is a very thought provoking article and could save someone's life. I began to think of who I would contact in the Old Hurley area if I suddenly came upon the situation where a heart attack was occurring. Most doctors have answering services and at the wrong time of the day they would be unable to be of service. I do not know if the State Police are equipped to give this kind of help. Maybe the Hurley Fire Department would be able to help, but at this point I do not know what service could be rendered.

It occurred to me that a service club, such as the Lions Club, might be the organization in an area that might have trained members who could be available and be of "life-saving" service to someone in the community.

Rescue squads are doing service that is certainly above and beyond the call of duty. What does Hurley have along this line of activity? However, your article points out in a poignant manner the importance of having interested, competent and trained individuals in a community who could be of service if an emergency arises. I tip my hat to the Freeman in the publication of this article.

Sincerely yours,
HAROLD VAN ALLEN
Rt. 5, Kingston

Answer to Atkinson

Dear Editor;

Congratulations Mr. Atkinson, you have showed your true colors, which are not Red-White and Blue, the true colors of true Americans. Your colors seem to be Pinko. We will put our service records of being an American, against yours any day in the week, if you have one, and let's see who is the true American and who is unAmerican. An American is dedicated to his Country, his loved ones, his freedom and willing to defend it with his life if necessary.

From your statement you are more concerned with the 200,000 civilians of Vietnam that were abused in prison camps, which were either Communist inclined or affiliated, than you are with our over 1300 POW's and MIA"s who are Americans and always will be Americans in the annals of history and never forgotten by true Americans and their brothers-in-arms.

Let's clear up your statement, Mr. Atkinson, on Veterans' Organizations. The Veterans' Organizations of these United States of ours, is the backbone of our nation keeping it on the righteous path, and fighting legislation by our legislators on a State and Federal level, that could impair the liberties we now all enjoy and impair them if some of them had their way by trying to confuse the issues and laws for veterans and non-veterans alike.

That's why our Country America, has and will endure the trials and tribulations that have encountered us, and by sure determination, persistance and the will to be free, that people like you, will never change our ideas, principles and freedoms, with your double talk, and indoctrinated idealogy you believe in, which is not ours.

In your statement you mentioned cowardice and conscience, the latter can possibly be excused and there are provisions for it, the other no way in hell. You also showed your colors, Mr. Atkinson, by completely avoiding the issue of our POW's and MIA's which proves in itself your concern for this country does not exist in any way, form or manner.

Your way of thinking and ideals are not of ours and never will be.

So the solution to it all is - if you don't like the ways of America and can't seem to believe in her and her principles, then it is time for you, Mr. Atkinson, to leave and try to find a better one. Bon Voyage.

Respectfully,
JOSEPH C. HASSETT
Commander for Disabled American Veterans and Ulster County Veterans Association of Ulster County.

Food for Thought

Dear Editor:

This article caught my eye and I thought many would get a kick out of it.

Once upon a time, there was a little red hen who scratched about the barnyard until she uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her neighbors and said, "If we plant this wheat, we shall have bread to eat. Who will help me plant it?"

"Not I," said the cow, and the duck and the goose.

"Then I will," said the little red hen, and she did. The wheat grew and ripened.

"Who will help me reap my wheat?" asked the hen.

"Not I," said the duck and the pig and the goose.

At last came the time to bake the bread.

"Who will help me bake bread?" asked little red hen.

"That would be overtime for me," said the cow.

"I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the duck, amd so on.

So red hen baked five loaves and held them up for all to see. They all demanded a share but red hen said, "No."

"Capitalistic luck," cried the duck.

"I demand equal rights" shouted the goose.

Then they painted an "unfair" picket sign and marched around shouting obscenities.

The government agent came and told the hen she must not be greedy. "But I earned the bread" she cried.

"Exactly," said the agent. "That is the wonderful free-enterprise system. Anyone in the barnyard can earn as much as he wants, but, under government regulations, the productive workers must divide their product with the idle."

And they lived happily ever after. But the little red hen's neighbors wondered why she never again baked bread.

Ideal or What?

Dear Editor:

"Megawatts for the people," said a letter-writer recently.

What a beautiful idea! What an inspired way of describing municipal power, where the people paying reduced prices for energy are providing such profits to the municipality that property taxes can be reduced to tolerable levels.

On second thought, did Central Hudson or one of its employes think up this beautiful slogan to distract the people from opposing the utilities continuing campaign to increase rates?

Perhaps, "Megawatts for the people" should take its place alongside Simon Legree's "Full employment for slaves," or the National Association of Manufacturers' "Every workingman has the right to bargain for himself," or "Billions for defense contractors but not a cent for cities."

"Megawatts for the people" — an ideal or a red herring?

Yours truly,
LOUIS FAGON
New Paltz

A Bully of a Route

WASHINGTON — Americans are taught that their history consists of three episodes: 1776, the Civil War and NOW. This allows men like Governor Reagan to rally their courtrymen to resist the outrageous demands of the Panamanians who're demanding OUR canal, the one we bought and paid for fair and square. That doesn't even match up with how Theodore Roosevelt, the President who signed the treaty, described how the thing went down: "If I had followed conventional, conservative methods, I should have submitted a dignified state paper to the Congress and the debate would have been going on yet, but I took the canal zone...."

Before he got around to taking, in 1903, the United States had been dabbling in the Isthmus for better than 40 years. For one reason or another, American troops had been landed there in 1856, 1860, 1873 (twice), 1885 and 1900. When not landing the Marines, Americans had built a railroad across the Isthmus. By 1901 that railroad was represented by William Cromwell, of Sullivan & Cromwell, later to be John Foster Dulles' law firm.

While Americans were constructing the railroad, the French were spending a titanic sum failing to build the canal. The French went bankrupt; their company was reorganized under the leadership of a gentleman by the name of Phillipe Bunau-Varilla. At the same time a mysterious firm called the Panama Canal Company of America was incorporated in Cromwell's law offices for the purpose of taking over the assets of the quasi-defunct French firm.

Sometime around 1900 Bunau-Varilla and Cromwell formed an alliance. Their purpose was to get the United States government, which was inclined toward a canal through Nicaragua, to change its mind, opt for the Panamanian Isthmus and in the process buy out the worthless French claim for a very large amount of money. Bunau-Varilla went to see Sen. Mark Hanna, ths most powerful Republican politician of his age, and abruptly convinced him to favor a Panamanian route. At the same time, Cromwell made a $60,000 contribution to the GOP. Roosevelt decided Panama was a bully route also.

The ducks were in a row. The only obstacle was the Republic of Colombia because, kiddies, in 1903 Panama wasn't an independent nation. It was a province of Colombia. A treaty had to be drawn up, and was one which gave Colombia 10 million dollars, and the stockholders, whoever they were by this time, of the French company $40 million. The treaty also stipulated that the Colombian government gave up all rights to sue for any portion of the $40 million as well as all police powers in the contemplated canal zone.

President Marroquin of Colombia didn't dare submit such an unfavorable treaty to his Congress for ratification. "If we do not yield (concessions) and the North Americans determine to build the canal they will open it without stopping at trifles, and then we will lose more sovereignty than we should lose by making the concessions they seek. History will say of me," he wrote, "that I ruined the Isthmus... scandalously injuring the rights of my country."

The Colombians rejected the treaty, and Roosevelt reacted by calling them "Dagos," "cat-rabbits," "contemptible little creatures" and "homicidal corruptionists." But Bunau-Varilla was of a more practical turn of mind.

From Panama he summoned Dr. Manuel Amador, a physician who worked for Cromwell's railroad, to room 1162 of the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, sometimes referred to as the cradle of Panamanian liberty, and there he presented the doctor with $100,000 supplied by J.P. Morgan, a secret code, a Declaration of Independence, a draft of the new nation's Constitution and the soon-to-be-born Republic's flag, thoughtfully designed and sewn by Madame Bunau-Varilla. Thus equipped the doctor was sent back to Panama, where the section hands from the railroad were recruited into the revolutionary army.

With the arrival of the U.S. cruiser Nashville in Panamanian waters, the flag of liberty was run up, and when Colombian soldiers arrived in the province to put down the insurrection, the railroad refused to transport them. The new Republic was immediately recognized and its ambassador plenipotentiary, who was, surprise, surprise, the enterprising Bunau-Varilla, had the treaty signed within 10 days.

A particularly nice touch in all of this is Article III of the Panamanian Constitution, which says that the nation's sovereignty is secondary to any treaty that has or will be signed with the United States.

As for the money, $40 million was paid to J.P. Morgan, who was to transfer it to the stockholders in the French company. Their names have never been made public. August Belmont was suspected as being one of them, but nothing is known for certain because Cromwell refused to divulge them to a Senate committee. What is on the record is that Cromwell got an $800,000 legal fee for his work, a stupendous sum in terms of 1903 dollars.

In 1921 the United States paid Colombia a $25 million indemnity, not out of a sense of guilt, but because Secretary of Interior Albert Fall, later sent to jail for corruption, warned that if we didn't, the Colombians would sell their oil concession to the English. Progress has come to Panama as well. The Pamamanians have replaced Madame Bunau-Varilla's flag with one of their own design. Ah, the joys of freedom.

Cambodian Horror Stor

WASHINGTON — The world's two most brutal dictatorships, according to the evidence in intelligence files, are Cambodia and North Korea.

Cambodia's Commnist firebrands have turned their country into a nation of cattle. Cities have been emptied and the population has been herded into the hinterland, with no apparent thought for their welfare. Hundreds of thousands have fallen by the wayside.

In North Korea, the populace has been terrorized by the government for two generations. Hundreds of thousands have been imprisoned or banished to remote mountainous areas for no other reason than that some anonymous bureaucrat decided they were "unreliable." At least half of the population is kept under varying surveillance.

These are human sagas, epic events. Yet the world press has paid scant attention, devoting its energies instead to exposing corruption across the Cambodian border in Thailand and excoriating President Chung Hee Park on the other side of the 38th parallel in South Korea.

In both Communist dictatorships, the rulers have pulled down the blinds, and they carefully control the light that leaks through. Yet the harsh facts are available from eye witnesses — not political opponents whose reports might be suspect but refugees who have escaped from the horrors. Their stories have been checked and verified by intelligence analysts a hundred tlmes over.

The Khmer Rouge regime, after seizing power in Cambodia, drove the people out of the cities, en masse. They were routed out of their homes, turned out of hospitals, prodded out of sick beds.

The mass exodus developed into a death march, without parallel in modern times. Countless Cambodians were herded like human cattle to unknown destinations, clutching a few bundled belongings, carrying their invalids on stretchers, a few hobbling on crutches. The scenes described by the escapees were horrendous.

The exodus routes were littered with the corpses of the old, the sick and the weak who couldn't keep up. The Khmer guerrillas who policed these human highways provided almost no food, water or medicine.

As the crowning cruelty, the men and women were deliberately separated to break up families. Subsequently, the Khmer Rouge ordered the people to take new names to make it more difficult for loved ones to find one another.

The survivors were distributed throughout the countryside in groups, with instructions to build huts and plant rice. Until the first harvest came in, the displaced city people subsisted on frogs, insects and wild roots.

Why did the Khmer Rouge uproot the populace? The story has been put out that the new rulers are agrarian fundamentalists, who wanted to get the people back to the soil and make Cambodia self-sufficient. But intelligence analysts have concluded, based upon the jigsaw pieces they have been able to put together, that the real reason for scattering the people was to keep them under control.

At the time of the takeover, the Khmer Rouge had only an estimated 40,000 troops to control a population of over seven million. The cities were populated with the more sophisticated people, subject to foreign influence. The Khmer leaders, therefore, feared the cities would become centers of resistance.

This was also the reason that families were broken up, leaving individuals with no ties that could be used to organize opposition. The Khmers were suspicious of anyone with an education, anyone who might be susceptible to alien ideas. In some areas, anyone who could read and write was killed.

All schools have also been closed down, presumably until the Khmer Rouge can train enough trusted teachers to re-educate the nation. The only education now permitted is political indoctrination, a fanatic form of foreign-hating, chauvinistic Marxism.

The harsh, dogmatic men who now rule Cambodia understand, above all, that the best way to control the masses is, first to cow them and, then, to indoctrinate them. The Khmers moved swlftly, therefore, to stamp out the slightest resistance, real or imagined.

The former Cambodian army was quickly disbanded and its officers largely eliminated' Some soldiers were roped together and clubbed to death. The few who escaped to tell about it showed rope burns on the arms.

Others were corraled in work camps, where they were worked mercilessly for long hours and subjected to additional hours of hysterical indoctrination. Discipline in these camps is extremely harsh, with beatings and killings for the slightest misdeeds.

Lots of Loony Legalities

Forty years ago, Dick Hyman paused to listen to a judge in Jasper, Ala. The judge said that "since the Alabama husband is accountable for his wife's misbehavior, he has the legal right to chastise her with a stick no larger than the thumb."

Hyman was a New York reporter. He returned to the Big Apple determined to devote his life to locating nutty laws. He has written newspaper columns, magazine articles and books about loony legalities. He has just published 600 of the weirdest in a book called "The Trenton Pickle Ordinance and Other Bonehead Legislation." Have a few samples, and bear in mind these are ordinances:

In Alaska it's against the law to look at a moose from an airplane. It's against the law in Florida to molest an alligator. In Indiana, a driver can be given a breath test against his will because the legislature reasons that "after the breath leaves the body it ceases to be the property of the person from whom it came."

It is against the law for a baby-sitter in Altoona, Pa., to clean out an employer's refrigerator. You may not back a car in Glendale, Calif. You can be fined in Georgia for slapping a man on the back.

Barbers in Waterloo, Ia., are forbidden by law to eat onions between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. In Baton Rouge, La., a bill has been introduced fixing a 25-cent ceiling on haircuts for bald men.

Kentucky state law is blunt on this question: Every citizen must take a bath at least once a year. If you steal a cake of soap in Mojave County, Ariz., a policeman will stand by as you wash yourself with the soap until it is used up.

No one in Lawrence, Kans., is permitted to walk the streets with bees in his hat. Fairbanks, Alaska, forbids anyone from disturbing a grizzly bear to take its picture. It's a violation of the city code for a tenant in Rumford, Me., to bite his landlord.

In Utah, birds have the right of way on highways. Virginia has a campaign statute. "To prohibit corrupt practices or bribery by any person other than candidates." In Texas, women who adorn calendars in saloons must be decently clad.

Sterling, Colo., warns that it is a violation of law to permit your cat to run loose without a tail-light. A rooster who wants to crow in Kenilworth, Ill., must first step back 300 paces from any residence.

In Boston it is forbidden to put tomatoes in clam chowder. Colorado statutes proclaim: "No maternity hospital shall receive an imfant without its mother, except in cases of emergency." It is against the law in Seattle to carry a concealed weapon over six-feet long.

Iowa passed a law many years ago stating that women are not allowed to wear corsets. The men of the state were appointed corset inspectors, and were permitted to poke strange ladies in the ribs. No woman in Kentucky is permitted to marry the same man four times. Girls in Whitesville, Del., are forbidden to propose marriage in leap year. In Michigan, if a man's wife leaves him, he may follow her down the street removing articles of her clothing one by one - they are his property. You are subject to a fine in Hammond, Ind., for missing a spittoon from any angle. In Monroe, Utah, couples who dance must make certain that there is plenty of light between their bodies. You cannot call a doctor in Ohio a horse doctor, even if he is a horse doctor. A dentist who yanks the wrong tooth in South Foster, R.I., must submit to having a wrong tooth extracted from his mouth. In Atlanta, window dressers must, under law, draw the store shades during the robing and disrobing of their mannequins.

It is legal for a cop in Paulding, O., to bite a dog to quiet him. You cannot drink from public drinking fountains in Garden City, Kans. In parts of Maine it is illegal to tickle a girl under the chin with a feather duster.

Frogs are prohibited by law from croaking in Memphis after 11 p.m. No one is allowed to plant vegetables in a California cemetery. A woman of Owensboro, Ky., is forbidden to purchase a hat unless her husband tries it on first.

In the same state it is "contributory negligence" for any person to walk behind a mule without speaking to the animal first.

It's the law..'.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (UPI) — Last year the nation's utilities drew and distributed more than 30 billion gallons of water each and every day, according to a study made by the Municipal and Utility Division of Rockwell International, a leading U.S. manufacturer of water meters.

It's a Bad Year for Prophets

It makes you wonder. We've had all sorts of political prophets who have invoked all sorts of polls to sustain their logic. The advocates of the "southern strategy" have predicted a continuing string of Republican presidential victories, the theory being that conservative southerners would continue to desert the Democrats who were divided on the "Wallace factor."

But the successes of Jimmy Carter in his own southern territory have knocked that particular theory in the head: Jimmy garnered both black and white Democratic votes in Florida and North Carolina, and he has done well in Dixie caucuses elsewhere. Clearly he would hold the South in a national election.

On the national scene, the prophets may be in for a bigger beating. This, supposedly, is a conservative year. All the important primary candidates save Udall have been making some gestures to the Right. But now we are confronted with the Hubert Horatio Humphrey phenomenon.

Carter's "ethnic purity" slip, while it has been vastly overplayed by hypocrites who really believe with him that the Federal government has no business in using force to break up homogeneous communities, has hurt the previously unflappable Jimmy's front-runner status. Udall can't quite make it even with some of the liberals. Henry Jackson, the most intelligent of the Democratic contenders, has come on too strongly about Trident submarines and telling Brezhnev what to do about emigration from Russia to satisfy the big "let's stay at home" element in his party.

So now lots of Democrats are saying that "Hubert is our best, and it is silly not to go with our best."

We are, then, faced with the probability that none other than Hubert the Hump will carry flag for the Democrats in November. Humphrey is a complete throwback to the 1930s, when the Federal government was trusted to solve every problem and when popular writers like Stuart Chase and George Soule were extolling the "planned society."

I have been handcuffed in trying to write about Humphrey simply because I have a horror of repeating myself. It was way back in 1960 that I wrote a campaign profile of Humphrey for National Review in which I lamented that Hubert had only one idea, and that was to throw money at a problem in accordance with a collectivist plan. I brought the profile up to date in 1964 when Humphrey was Lyndon Johnson's chosen running mate. So there is nothing more, substantively, to be said: Hubert hasn't changed a bit in all these years.

The crazy thing about it is that he is likely to be our next President. His platform would be Rexford Tugwell's program for 1936 and 1940. But instead of going by the name of Tugwellism, it would exalt the names of Humphrey and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins of California, who are responsible for the so-called Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976.

Under the terms of this bill (which has, incidentally, been endorsed by Jimmy Carter, the supposed enemy of Washington bureaucratic control), the Federal government would shovel out money until the unemployment rats had been cut to three per cent.

There would be new public service jobs (adding to the already bloated government payroll), a special work and apprentice service for 18-year-olds, and a continuation of a high minimum wage even for those with nothing much to contribute to the gross national product.

Since the so-called Phillips curve, which once "proved" a correlation between inflation and increased private employment, has been brought into complete disrepute in England, the whole Humphrey-Hawkins program lacks any justification. It would be wildly inflationary without causing any healthy new investment in the private sector.

If Humphrey is nominated, with Carter as his providential vice presidential running mate, he could beat a Republican relying on Dixie. In which case our prophets of a conservative victory in 1976 might well turn to Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" for an evaluation of their profession. Said Mark Twain's Yankee: "A prophet doesn't have to have any brains... It is the restfulest vocation there is. When the spirit of prophecy comes upon you, you... unship your jaw and leave it alone; it will work itself: The result is prophecy."

Understand, I am making no predictions about the 1976 outcome. I am a Connecticut Yankee too.

McHugh's Hat In Ring Again

BINGHAMTON — It will be the second time around the congressional campaign trail for Rep. Matthew McHugh, D-27th Dist., who said today he is running for re-election "with few illusions."

In formally announcing his candidacy for his seat in the House of Represenatives, McHugh said he delayed it for as long as possible because he "wanted to remain a legislator — and not a candidate — for as long as possible.

"Too often for members of the House, the end of one campaign is the signal for the next one to begin. Given the two-year term of office, perhaps this is inevitable," he said. "Still this promises to be an exhausting political year for all of us, candidates and citizens alike, and the later the political barnstorming the better."

McHugh, after 16 months in office believes he has a deeper appreciation now for the seriousness and complexity of problems facing the country and the limited capacity of any one representative to dramatically deal with them. In announcing his candidacy, he said he therefore wants to avoid inflated assessments and overblown promises and asked to be judge only on his record of service.

In '1876', Gore Vidal Describes Life in Barrytown

By JIM HAVILAND

STONE RIDGE — The Hudson Valley figures prominently in the latest best seller "1876" written by Gore Vidal, who learned about the region first hand while maintaining a mansion beside the Hudson River at Barrytown for more than 20 years.

Vidal, who first moved to the area in 1950, describes his former river estate, "Edgewater," in "1876" and also gives a glimpse of what life was like for the wealthy a hundred years ago at "Ferncliff," the ancestral Astor estate at Rhinecliff.

Coming across strongly in the book is an aversion the author must have developed to passing trains while residing near the Penn Central tracks paralleling the river's east shore.

While living at Barrytonw, Vidal found time in 1960 to run as a Democrat for Congress — and lose. This experience whetted his appetite for politics clearly indicated in "1876" in his description of events in the bitter presidential election contest between Samuel J. Tilden, the New York governor; and Rutherford B. Hayes, the Ohio governor.

Through the years, including those spent in the Hudson Valley, Vidal has developed a sharp and active tongue. These strong feeling come across vibrantly in his latest book.

A Hudson Valley native, the 50-year-old Vidal was born in the Cadet Hospital at West Point. His father, Eugene L. Vidal, was the aviation expert in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's first cabinet who later founded two airlines — TWA and Northeast. His maternal grandfather was Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma.

Vidal's family background enabled him to mix freely with the wealthy, including Astor family members, and the famous, including the late President John F. Kennedy. These relationships have nurtured insights he presents in "1876."

In his book, Vidal vividly describes his former Barrytown home, "Edgewater," although not mentioning it by name.

The novel's main character, Charles Schermerhorn Schuyler, bearing an uncanny resemblence to Vidal, drives north by carriage to "Edgewater" while visiting at "Ferncliff," the Astor's Rhinecliff estate. In "1876" Vidal's residence only is characterized as "a charming estate owned by some people whose name I never learned."

The author describes this mansion as a fine example of the Greek style. "Six tall columns form a portico that overlooks a sweep of lawn ending in willow trees at the Hudson River," he writes of his former home. " The house is beautifully proportioned, with a north wing consisting of a single octagonal room two storeys high and lit by a glass cupola that must make it unpleasantly hot in the summer and impossible to heat in the winter." Mrs. Astor was the tone who inspired the term, "the 400", representing the number of acceptable socialites who could fit into her private New York ballroom.

Previously in the book while being introduced to Mrs. Astor at her Fifth Avenue mansion, Schuyler notices that her "dead black hair is not entirely her own." Vidal describes this not young woman as being "decorated with chains of diamonds and pearl moonbursts and a stomacher of emeralds that the Great Mogul himself might envy."

In describing the trip up the Hudson by private railway coach, the novelist reports "the hauntingly beautiful Hudson River was ever in our view while we contentedly dined." By the time lunch was "comfortably digested," the car was detached from the train at the Rhinecliff depot.

"Waiting for us on the sideing were Ward McAllister were Ward McAllister (Mrs. AStor's social arbitrator) and a pair of grooms from the Astor household," Vidal reports. "In frock coat and silk hat, McAllister looked remarkably out of place in that green rustic setting."

Schuyler and the others in his party are driven by carriage from the station to the Astor house. They traveled along a charming country lane "lined with stone houses from our Dutch Dutch period as well as with the frame houses of our English successors."

The novelist tells of first seeing Ferncliff at "the end of a driveway lined with splendid elm trees." He describes the house as "a large new mansion of wood." Charlie Schuyler is shocked over seeing a mere wood mansion and reports "the effect is very odd."

This main house at Ferncliff was demolished in 1945 when Vincent Astor and his second wife, the former Mary Benedict Cushing, moved into the "Sports Palace." This imposing Renaissance structure, originally built in 1903 by the famous architect Stanford White, was remodeled into living quarters.

Several years after Vincent Astor's death, the ancestral Astor estate was given to the Roman Catholic Church and now contains a nursing home.

In the book, Vidal reports that the rooms in the original Ferncliff mansion offered a splendid vista through the trees of the " bright river far below, not to mention the railroad."

The novelist evidentally was annoyed by passing trains while at his own "Edgewater" and vividly describes what he imagines was an even greater nuisance back in 1876 when there were many more of these toot toots belching unpleasant clouds of smoke and cinders.

"The sound of the trains carries eerily well," Vidal writes, " and all the magnates who have built houses along this high cliff are forced to listen to the trains just the way the humble folk who life beneath the Sixth Avenue Elevated Railway are deafened at regular intervals all through the day."

The author explains that the trains continue through the night and seem to blow their whistles just while passing beneath Ferncliff. He tells how everyone stopped speaking in the mansion when one train clattered by below "causing the crystals in the chandeliers to chatter."

The choo-choos passed much closer to Vidal's own home on a level with the tracks and he seems even more bitter when describing these incursions.

While Charlie Schuyler is talking to someone at this location, he is interrupted by "a noise rather like an explosion close by, then a deafening shrill whistle." Looking up, according to Vidal, Schuyler saw " one of Commodore Vanderbilt's monsters: some thirty freight cars jerked and rattled past as smoke and burning cinders erupted from the locomotive, making a huge cloud that obscured half the sky."

The novelist explains that during a visitation by the passing train at "Edgewater" even the native did not talk. "We stood mute, motionless, as ashes fell about us like a dark rain." Schuyler observed.

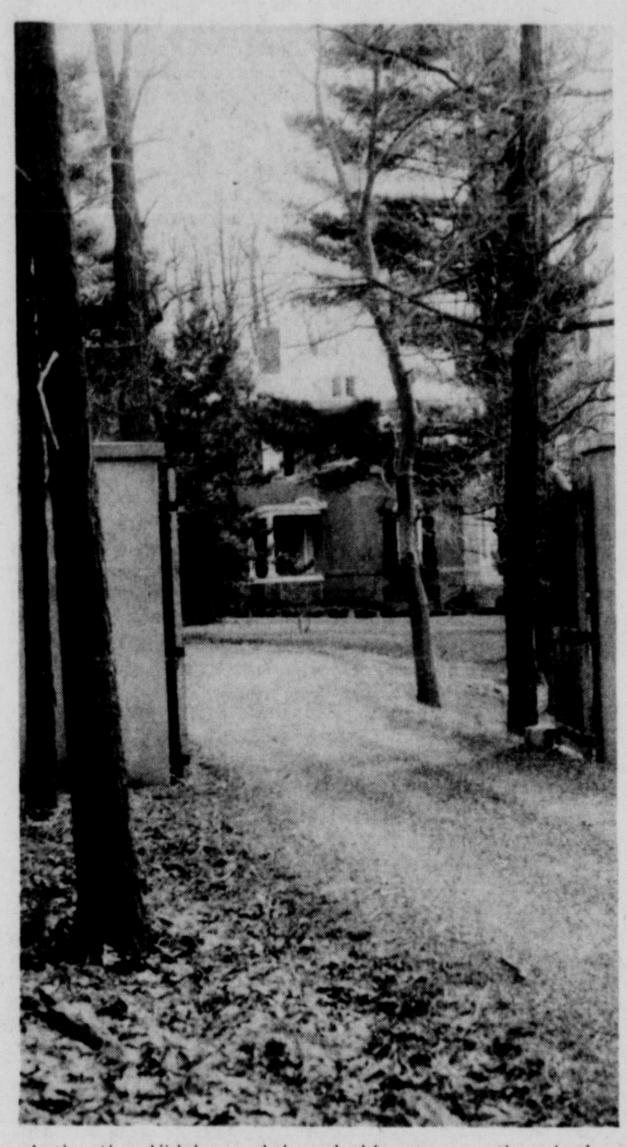

The constant annoyance of the trains in the 1950's and 1960's may have been what drove Vidal from the Hudson's shores several years ago. Now he spends a good deal of his time eight or nine months a year at his Italian villa at Ravello where life far away from the tracks presumably is much quieter.

"Edgewater," the former Barrytown estate of Gore Vidal, offers breath-taking beauty of the Hudson River which surrounds it on three sides. The ugly feature is provided by the noisy trains hurrying close by on tracks just behind the mansion.

Author Gore Vidal in his book describes his former home as haveing "a north wing consisting of a single octagonal room two storeys high and lit by a glass cupola that must make it unpleasantly hot in the summer and impossible to heat in the winter."

Author Gore Vidal passed through this gate many times in the more than 20 yeasr he owned this Barrytown estate. In the book "1876" he describes it as a fine example of the Greek style.

Sermon for the Deaf

A special worship service for the deaf will be held again this Sunday at St. John's Episcopal Church, 207 Albany Avenue. The interpreters for this service will be Brothers Vargas and Nolan, students at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary. This special service is held on the third Sunday of each month. Everyone is welcome, 10:30 this Sunday.

Vintner Mark Miller on TV

MARLBORO —The small winemakers in the Hudson Valley know what they want. Contending the industry here is 15 years behind California, they want New York State's law liberalized.

One thing they'd like is a farm winery license that would allow a farmer to make wine from his own grapes up to 50,000 gallons.

Any such modification of the law already has the approval of Gov. Hugh Carey and the Farm Bureau. Now the little old winemakers are getting a push from a major television network.

How smaller vintners are pressing for changes in the law and why will be the subject of a TV news feature this Sunday, April 25 on ABC's Channel 7 between 6 and 7 p.m.

Bob Lape of ABC filmed material for the show at Benmarl Vineyards in Marlboro. Mark Miller of the Ulster County winery will be seen on the show.

Ostomy Meeting

KINGSTON — "The Role of the Enterostomal Therapist to the Ostomy Visitor" will be the subject of a talk Sunday, April 25, at 2:30 p.m. at Benedictine Hospital's Senior Residence Auditorium.

The meeting is being sponsored by Mid-Hudson Ostomy Chapter for all persons who have had colostony, ileostomy or urostomy surgery.

Dear Abby

Pal Pants With Baited Breath

DEAR ABBY: Buddy, a guy I work with, likes to fish and so do I, so last weekend he and I went on a fishing trip. When we came home and Buddy met my wife for the first time, he looked her up and down, and then he turned to me and said, "Hey, man, you must be nuts to leave a beautiful gal like that alone for the weekend."

Do you think I was?—LIKES TO FISH

DEAR LIKES: I don't know about THAT weekend, but the next time you go fishing, be sure to take Buddy with you.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I married a widow. I owned a home, but it was too large for two people, so I sold it and moved into hers. She had a mortgage on it, which I paid off, then I bought her home from her and put it in both our names.

The problem is her son. He has been in a lot of trouble with the law. (Burglaries.) Right now he's on probation.

He has always carried a key to his mother's house, which means he can come and go as he pleases, whether we're home or not.

I have missed a pair of expensive binoculars, a portable TV and a very good camera. I believe this young man took them and sold them. His mother thinks so, too, and she has asked him for the key. He gives her one excuse after another and still has the key.

How can we get the key back without making an ugly scene? —CHICAGOAN

DEAR CHICAGOAN: Forget the key. Change the locks.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a mature, 15-year-old girl, and I can't wait until my next birthday so I can quit school and leave home.

My mother is always on my back about something. Nothing I do ever pleases her. She has never trusted me, even when I had nothing to hide. She makes me feel so low and cheap. I can't wait to get away from this house and HER.

There is this dude I really dig. He's 22 and being divorced. I'm not supposed to be seeing him, but I see him anyway. He says when I turn 16 I'll be able to do what I please, then he'll take me on the road with him. He's a trucker and makes good money.

It wouldn't be a shacking-up deal, Abby. He wants to MARRY me as soon as his divorce comes through. He's got two kids, but his wife keeps them, and she doesn't hassle him because he's always been on time with the support checks.

I love this dude, and the only thing I can say against him is that he gets awfully mean when he drinks. But he's not an alcoholic, and he never drinks on the job.

Help me decide what to do. Anything would be better than living here.—WANTS TO RUN

DEAR WANTS: Of all the reasons to marry, yours is the poorest. Please get some counseling, dear. Your school has a service for troubled students. And a talk with a clergyman would help. But the word from here is to stay home and get your head together.

Middle Age is Ten Years Hence

"Hey Mom," said my son the other afternoon. "Why don't you talk to this guy at the door?"

"What does he want?"

"He's selling firewood."

"Winter's over. We don't want any."

He hesitated. "Just talk to him. He's so old and he looks sorta shabby and I think he needs the money."

On the way to the door, I got a mental picture of Willy Loman from "Death of a Salesman," with red-rimmed watery eyes, graying hair, pants in need of pressing and shoes with the heels run down.

I opened the door. There stood a guy about 28 years old in faded jeans and a $40 McGregor windbreaker. he was checking his digital watch for the time. His 1975 Ford truck stood in the driveway.

"What's with the old and shabby number?" I said later to my son. "That guy couldn't have been more than 28 or 29 years old."

"That's middle age," he said.

The dictionary lists middle age as somewhere between youth and old age. I'd pinpoint it somewhere between birth and death. It fluctuates depending on your own age.

When I was 17 and a senior in high school I had a teacher who was seven years older than I. At 24, he was middle-aged and more's the pity, he didn't know anything. I hung around after class because I felt sorry for him.

When he was 31, I was 24. My husband and I saw him at a dance one night and he looked bored. Why shouldn't he have looked bored? His life was over. His body was gone. He had advanced as far professionally as he was going to go. And I was sure he never kissed his wife. I mean, what for?

When he was 38, he was 10 years older than I and looked it. He wore the coat sweaters and was showing some signs of gray. Sometimes though, when he hallucinated, he made some pretty good sense.

Years later, when he was 45, he was 13 years older than I and I had to marvel at how well he was holding up. He told me he and his wife were doing some traveling and he still remembered my name.

I saw my old teacher the other day. I figured out he was 56 years old now.

"My goodness," he said, "that would make you 49 and middle-aged, wouldn't it?" The poor devil is so squirrely. I'll never understand why they let these old, confused people climb behind the wheel of a car. Everyone knows middle age is 10 years from wherever you are and the way I'm going, I may never get there.

Zany, Mad, Incredible

KINGSTON— The zany, the mad, the incredible music of PDQ Bach will be performed by the Hudson Valley Philharmonic at the final subscription series concert of the season May 3 at Community Theatre in Kingston. The concert will also be given May 1 and 2 at the Monroe-Woodbury High School and the Poughkeepsie High School. All performances begin at 8 p.m.

Professor peter Schikele, the "discoverer" and exponent of PDQ Bach's music, will be on hand as soloist on the left handed piano, the sewer flute, and the Oscar Mayer Wiener whistle and will serve as "intellectual guide" to the compositions performed. The orchestra will be conducted by Leon Botstein.

Known for his concertizing and records of the PDQ Bach repertoire, Professor Schikele has been sending audiences and critics into convulsions across the nation for 16 years. His humorous concerts have been presented by most of the major orchestras in this country and have been annual end-of-the-season events at both the Juilliard School of Music and the Aspen Music Festival.

Peter Schikele holds degrees from Swarthmore and Juilliard, has received a composer's fellowship from the Ford Foundation, and has taught at Juilliard. He has composed works for the St. Louis Symphony and the Louisville Orchestra as well as the scores for four feature films, Sesame Street, and the Broadway hit, "Oh'. Calcutta." His book, "The Definitive Biography of PDQ Bach "was recently published by Random House.

Celebrated '1776' Set for May 1 at RVHS

STONE RIDGE— Bicentennial observances of all types are burgeoning in Ulster County, as elsewhere in the nation, but two are especially notable and appropriate. One occurred in early April, when the New York State Senate met in Kingston's historic Senate House. The other will arrive May 1 in the Rondout Valley High School auditorium, the complete Broadway production of "1776."

This celebrated musical, which confounded all cynics and doubters by becoming "best musical" in its initial year on Broadway, will be performed by a professional touring company. Area residents fortunate enough to obtain tickets will see John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and all the other Founding Fathers brought to life, complete with faults and foibles. Moreover, the production for the public will enable Rondout students to see real professional theater; the company will put on two performances for them on Monday, May 3.

The remarkable feat, by which the birth pangs of a nation were transformed into a musical triumph, has been acclaimed by critics everywhere. Words such as "wit," "humanity," "style," "courage," "moving work of theatrical art," "exhilarating," "absorbing and exciting" were used to describe their reactions. Now, the Continental Theatre Company brings it all to RVHS.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. Reserve tickets now by contacting Rondout Valley Central School District Office. Don't miss the significance of "1776" in 1976.

Creative Dance Classes For Children, Adults

WOODSTOCK— Julie Hutchins is beginning a spring series of classes and workshops for adults and children. They will be held at St. Gregory's Church on Route 212. Creative dance, advanced dance, rhythmics and tumbling classes for children will be available, along with exercise, live music and dance, and yoga classes for adults. Private classes for people with problem backs, painful arthritis or similar problems will be offered also.

"In teaching children I encourage individual rather than formal movement," Ms. Hutchins said. "I work on developing their natural body rhythms and balance. I help them to strengthen, coordinate and learn to relax. In learning to relax, children (and adults) learn to listen more carefully to music and to their bodies, and to concentrate more deeply on what they are doing, whether it is dance, tumbling or any other activity. In teaching adults, I emphasize on attunement to breathing and posture. I work particularly toward helping adults to release tensions, to overcome inhibitions about moving and to appreciate their bodies and their health. I focus on integrating body and mind, feelings and movements in relationship to dance as well as to everyday activities."

Julie Hutchins has been teaching creative dance, rhythmics, tumbling, yoga, body awareness and massage for the past eight years. Her creative dance experience began in Woodstock 16 years ago with Ruth Ingalls. She has also studied many other forms of movement and body work. Last September, Ms. Hutchins, together with Judi Bachrach and Sara Cook, formed the Woodstock Creative Movement Center. The Center was organized to collect the various techniques being offered in this area. New teachers are invited to inquire and workshops and classes are regularly announced.

Additional information may be had by contacting Ms. Hutchins at 21 Hemlock Lane in Woodstock.

Acting Chairman

UCCAC Elects Gilday to Post

KINGSTON—Andrew J. Gilday Jr., a city attorney, has been elected acting chairman of the board of directors of the Ulster County Community Action Committee Inc.

Meeting in special session Tuesday night at the county office building, UCCAC came away with 20 duly constituted members.Seven of them had been members of the former board of directors which had split over the firing of executive director David Joseph and which had been under fire itself over recent revelations concer concerning financial questions concerning both David and former board president James Billups.

Gilday, speaking to the Freeman following the elections, indicated they were temporary—permanent elections will be held in June—but said nonetheless that a personnel committee to be named by h im next week would begin probing the various allegations surrounding the operation of the almost $500,000 a year poverty program.

Board members were nominated and elected from various sectors of the community. The county legislature nominated Henry Paul Jr. (an and Legislator Melvin Mones (both incumbents) al along with Legislators Alice Tipp and Larry Kithcart. John Logan is the fifth county representative to the board.

Gilday is an appointee of Mayor Francis R. Koenig. The Common Council of the city also has an appointee but it has not been filled; it is the only vacancy on the board.

Representatives from the "private sector" will include Lawrence Nobles from the NAACP, Connie Weis-Goffredi from the YWCA, Katie Gordon from PFI, an agency of the state labor department, Julius Sippen from the ILGWU, Ms. Marty Carney from Headstart, Donald J. Hanzel from IBM and Richard B. Mathews from the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce.

Area representatives will include Rosemary Melindez from Wawarsing and Sandra Wright. Mrs. Melindez is an incumbent. Rondout sends incumbents Lester Hatcher and Annie Jackson to the board while Saugerties returns Lucille Maggiolo, Carole Johnson is the representative from the New Paltz area and Frank Robinson, an incumbent, will represent Rosendale.

Fire Workshop

More than 250 Ulster County fire and law enforcement officials have registered for a workshop on "line officers" responsibilities in arson investigation" to be held April 24 at Ulster Community College. Instructor will be Harold Glass, former special agent from the Fraud and Arson Division of the National Board of Fire Underwriters' who will concentrate on fraud fires and the preservation of evidence. Preparing the program are (l-r): Al Morelli, president of the Ulster County Magistrates Association; Wesley Clark, Ulster County Fire Coordinator; and Professor Robert A. Kurland, chairman of the Department of Public Service at UCCC.

Dock Festival Plans

KINGSTON — Now that Kingston's Bicentennial Commission knows definitely that the New York State Bicentennial Barge will dock in Kingston in the Rondout Creek, June 25-27, plans are being made for a shoreside festival.

Kingston is one of 32 stops along the barge route, according to Edward Levine, commission chairman.

Raymond L. Caddy and Edward Arace, co-chairmen of the festival committee plan stage attractions, exhibits, special events and activities utilizing the theme, "Man is a Mosaic."

A welcoming ceremony has been scheduled for Friday, June 25 with a stage attraction planned by Roger Scholl, who is in charge of entertainment. Saturday ethnic dances and music will be provided and an evening performance will be given by Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, the Women's Barbershop group and the Steuben Society. Additional performing groups are being sought with particular emphasis on ethnic music and dancing.

The committee will construct 15 to 20 booths for sale of refreshments, crafts and merchandise as well as exhibits.

"The booths will not be commercial or political, nor will they be for hard-core causes," Caddy emphasizsd. "Balloons are not in keeping with the theme, nor are trinkets, buttons, and animals on sticks. Handcrafted items, particularly ethnic crafts, will be given preference and hopefully combined with information or demonstration, he said.

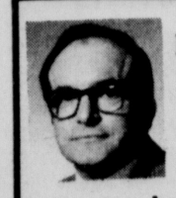

In spite of reports that some communities along the barge route are considering pulling out because of inadequacy of state funding, Kingston is planning with a great deal of voluntary cooperation to make the festival self-supporting, Levine said. Accordingly, there will be a charge for booth space: $300 for refreshment booths and $150 for merchandise booths. The committee suggests non-profit groups may be able to secure sponsorships.

State Reports On fees

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Department of Motor Vehicles has announced that the state collected $1.3 million from the registration of snowmobiles and motorboats in 1975.

A total of 149,401 snowmobiles were registered and there were 337,701 motorboats registered in the department's computer file, a DMV statement said.

Because motorboat registrations are good for three years, only 125,631 new registrations were recorded last year.

Sittler Scores Five as Leafs Catch Flyers

Islanders Can Have Sunday Off

Billy Smith is glad he won't have to play Sunday but Darryl Sittler brought his lucky necktie, Red Kelly his pyramids and Butch Goring his overtime stick so they'd all be able to do just that.

Smith backstopped his fourth straight triumph in the Islander nets Thursday night as New York won 3-2 to take its best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarterfinal series from the Buffalo Sabres, the 1975 losing Cup finalists, four games to two.

A loss would have meant a seventh game in Buffalo Sunday and, said Smith, likely elimination for the Islanders.

"I'm glad it's over," he sighed in relief. "We never would have been able to go back to Buffalo and win there. That would have been unreal."

The win made Smith's fear academic. Jude Drouin, Eddie Westfall and Clark Gillies tallied for the Islanders while Gil Perreault and Jerry Korab scored for Buffalo, which was limited to 17 shots on goal by the tight-checking Islander defense.

Toronto, on the other hand, down three games to two in its series with defending Cup champion Philadelphia, needed a win to stay alive and a chance to play Sunday.

The Maple Leafs got that opportunity when Sittler, who earlier this year scored six goals in one game to tie a regular season record, tallied five times to tie a playoff mark as Toronto outscored the Flyers 8-5 in another penalty-filled contest to even the series at three games apiece.

"I felt lucky tonight and the puck was going in for me," the 25-year old Leafs' captain said. "But we outhustled them and that was the key factor."

Sittler laughingly noted he wore his lucky necktie to the game, "but who's to say if it all helps?"

He scored once each in the first and third periods and notched three goals in the middle session en route to matching Maurice Richard, who got his five goals back in 1944 against Toronto. Sittler added an assist to tie Dickie Moore and Phil Esposito for the most points in one contest, six.

Kelly, the Leafs' coach, said "a lot of hustle" was a big factor in the victory but so was "pyramid power." The parttime mystic had plastic pyramids strung beneath the Leafs' bench, in the dressing room and high atop Maple Leaf Gardens to transmit "a force much like energy" into his players.

During one of the brawls that marred the Leafs-Flyers game Thursday night, NHL president Clarence Campbell and refereein-chief Scott Morrison (R) stand up to get a better look. Involved in fracas are Dave Schultz and Dave Williams (L), Bob Kelly (9) and Dave Dunn (4), Tom Bladon (3) and Borje Salming (21). Campbell had off-ice problems Thursday. He and four other prominent Canadian businessmen were released on $100,000 bond each pending a second court appearance June 21 on two charges of conspiring to defraud the federal government. (UPI)

He hinted he'll have his good luck charms for Sunday's game in Philadelphia, where the Leafs have not won since December, 1971.

"On Sunday, we'll lay everything we have on the Flyers. Maybe you can herald it as the battle between Kate Smith and pyramid power," he said straightfaced.

The teams set a playoff record of 466 penalty minutes for a series when they amassed an additional 140 minutes Thursday, breaking the mark held by the Flyers and Boston in the 1974 finals of 390 minutes.

And again, police are considering laying assault charges as a result of an incident during the game. The Flyers' Dave Schultz had an altercation with a fan as he was making his way to the dressing room and an investigation will be made to determine whether the unnamed fan should be charged with assault.

At Los Angeles Goring, a 5-foot-9, 170-pounder who scored 33 goals during the regular season, notched his second overtime tally of the series — and his second career Cup goal — to give the Kings a 4-3 victory over Boston and square their series at three wins each.

Goring had won the series' second game only 27 seconds into the extra session. This time he took a little longer — 18:28 of overtime before banking in a 35-footer off the goalpost.

Tommy Williams opened the scoring for the Kings in the second period but Bobby Schmautz, Darryl Edestrand and Gregg Sheppard replied for the Bruins in the same period to give Boston a 3-1 lead. Mike Corrigan then scored twice in the final period, the second time only 2:12 before the end of regulation time.

The decisive seventh game, in Boston, is also scheduled for Sunday night.

There were no games in the World Hockey Association playoffs, but there is action in all three best-of-seven series tonight. Calgary opens its series at Winnipeg. New England hosts Indianapolis with a 2-1 lead and Houston, up 1-0, entertains San Diego.

McGlothen Suspended

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen, who said he deliberately struck two New York Met batters in a beanball battle Tuesday night, has been fined $300 and suspended for five days by National League President Chub Feeney.

"I expected to be fined, but not suspended," McGlothen said. "I think they're trying to make an example of me."

The suspension began Thursday and means McGlothen will miss his next scheduled start Sunday at San Diego.

Stung by three two-run homers in the first two innings of the 8-0 loss to the Mets, McGlothen struck Met center fielder Del Unser in the elbow in the third inning. Unser had hit one of the homers and also had won Monday's series opener with a homer in the 17th inning.

When McGlothen led off the bottom of the third, New York starter Jon Matlack threw close to the St. Louis pitcher, bringing a warning and the accompanying $50 fine from plate umpire Bruce Froemming.

Matlack led off the fourth and McGlothen threw three close pitches. He hit the Mets' lefthander in the back with a fourth pitch, touching off a fracas in which both dugouts came charging onto the field.

Froemming ejected McGlothen and Red Schoendienst because the Cardinal manager had been warned against continuing the feud. Mets shortstop Bud Harrelson also was ejected because Froemming said he used profanity in protesting Matlack's fine.

McGlothen and Matlack both admitted they threw at the batters.

"I threw that baseball to hit Unser. Let me make that perfectly clear," McGlothen said after the game.

Matlack said, "The man hit my hitter and he's going down. If I didn't get him, I'd get the next man."

New York General Manager Joe McDonald sent a letter to Feeney protesting Froemming's handling of the situation.

"I didn't complain about McGlothen as much as I complained about how Bruce Froemming handled it," McDonald said. "He let four pitches go by that either hit or nearly hit someone before ejecting anyone. That's too long to wait."

Froemming said of the complaint, "The Mets asked me why I didn't do something about it, like throw McGlothen out right away. But I had to go according to the book the regulations put together by the general managers."

Reggie Wants Guarantee

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Slugger Reggie Jackson says he's looking forward to playing for the Baltimore Orioles and would even consider playing without a contract.

But he said he needs some kind of guarantee that he'll be "taken care of" if he's injured.

"I look forward to playing for the Baltimore Orioles. I feel nothing but plus, plus, plus, but what happens if old Reggie gets a torn up leg and can't play. I can't sell popcorn for that kind of money."

If he began playing baseball without some kind of agreement or contract, Jackson said, "I'd also be playing with no guarantee I'd get anything if I broke a leg."

Jackson, ho has not signed with the Orioles since being traded to the club by Oakland, called radio station WBAL in Baltimore, which broadcast an interview Thursday. He denied giving the club the ultimatum that if he weren't signed in two days he would sit out the season and sign with a West Coast club next year.

He told WBAL sports director Ted Patterson Thursday, "That's not true, and that's one of the reasons I called you."

The Baltimore Evening Sun had reported that Jackson had given the club an ultimatum.

Jackson did say, however, that he had told the club it "would be difficult to start in May."

A spokesman for the Orioles also said Thursday that several telephone conversations were being held between Jackson, his agent, Gary Walker, and Oriole General Manager Hank Peters.

"I think something may happen soon," the spokesman said.

"I anticipate signing a long contract ... but we gotta have something for me to go out and take a chance of breaking a leg," Jackson said.

He also denied reports that is he asking for a $3 million five year contract.

"That is so erroneous, it was so stupid, I didn't want to comment on it," he said. "They don't talk about what Frank Sinatra makes. They don't talk about what the Jackson Five gets for an appearance. Everybody should keep that under their hats."

Commenting on the Orioles' admitted last resort of trading him to another team, Jackson said, "We could deal me off, which doesn't make sense."

Adams Feels the Pressure

The Chicago Cubs' Mike Adams feels the pressure "even when I bat in the second inning."

So he wasn't in an unfamiliar role when he came to bat for the Cubs with two out in the 11th inning, runners on second and third base and the score 4-4 Thursday with the Montreal Expos.

Adams delivered a single to right field on pitcher Dale Murray's first throw to him, and it gave the Cubs a 5-4 decision to end a five-game losing streak and furnish a split of two games completed Thursday. Montreal won a 12-6 victory in the completion of a game suspended after six innings because of darkness Wednesday.

Tim Foli homered during the three inning completion to give him the cycle for the game, the first time by a Montreal player and the 71st in National League history. He had a single, double and triple in the same game Wednesday.

Thursday the Cubs got improved pitching with Rick Reuschel lasting seven innings, though he gave up all four Montreal runs, three of them on a bases loaded double by rival pitcher Clay Kirby, who couldn't stay on the mound to finish the second inning.

Bill Madlock and Jerry Morales hit home runs on consecutive pitches by Fred Scherman to tie the game in the fifth, and neither team could score again until Morales doubled with one out in the 11th, Andy Thornton was walked intentionally, and both advanced on Manny Trillo's infield out before Adams hit.

"I was just trying to hit the ball wherever I could," Adams said. "If you're not playing regularly, you can't afford to pick balls to hit. You've got to start swinging."

"I like Adams," Cubs manager Jim Marshall said. "He played good ball for us all spring. I gave the other man a choice. He could have walked Adams and pitched to George Mitterwald, and he decided to pitch to Adams."

The Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 7-2 in the only other National League game and the Kansas City Royals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, in the only American League game.

Dodgers 7 Astros 2

Joe Ferguson drove in two runs with his first homer of the season and Mike Marshall earned his third save for the Dodgers. Marshall pitched out of a bases-filled, none-out jam in the seventh inning, saving the win for Doug Rau. Dusty Baker delivered a two-run single in the fifth inning when the Dodgers took a 6-0 lead.

Royals 2 Brewers 1

Don Money's error on George Brett's hard-hit grounder enabled Jim Wohlford to score Kansas City's winning run in the eighth inning. Doug Bird took over for Al Fitzmorris in the seventh inning and received credit for the victory. Jim Colborn suffered his first loss against one triumph for the Brewers.

Not a Good Day for NBA Playoff Favorites

All things considered, it wasn't the best of days for the National Basketball Association playoff favorites.

For the defending NBA champion Golden State Warriors, Thursday night brought a rather rude 123-111 defeat on their home court by the underdog Detroit Pistons. The victory, which ended a 14-game west coast losing streak for the Pistons, squared the semifinal series with Golden State at one game apiece.

Even before the seemingly endless NBA playoffs began, most observers felt it would ultimately be the Warriors and the Boston Celtics battling it out in the finals —and that the Celtics would go as far as John Havlicek could carry them.

But the Celtics, who didn't play Thursday, may have sustained an even greater loss than the Warriors when it was learned that the 36-year old Havlicek had suffered a serious leg muscle injury in their physical 107-98 victory over the Buffalo Braves Tuesday night. Although the win gave Boston a 1-0 lead in the series, with Havlicek out, the Celtics are hurting too.

"John went home all right, then woke up this morning and couldn't put his leg on the floor," said Celtics spokesman Howie McHugh. "He may play Sunday but we're not optimistic."

Havlicek, who scored 22 points in the opening game, suffered torn fascia tissue in the arch of his left foot during the game, but did not know it until the next morning. The injury was being treated with ice and medication. "Then it's a question of how well he can run on it," McHugh added.

Meanwhile, Curtis Rowe and Bob Lanier were doing their bit to ruin the Warriors' night by combining for 64 points in spearheading the Detroit victory. Rowe, who averaged 16 points during the regular season, surpassed that with a 17-point first quarter and wound up with 33.

The Warriors, paced by Rick Barry and Phil Smith, went ahead early in the second period, but a 9-0 Detroit outburst took control and paced the Pistons to a 70-66 halftime lead. Lanier, who failed to grab a rebound in the first half, finished with 31 points and eight rebounds. Barry and Smith led the Warriors with 27 and 21 points.

In the only other NBA game, Cleveland took a 3-2 lead in games over Washington by edging the Bullets 92-91. In the only American Basketball Association playoff game, Denver put away Kentucky 127-117.

Cavaliers 92, Bullets 91

Jimmy Cleamons tipped in a rebound shot at the buzzer as Cleveland pulled out the victory over Washington. A record NBA playoff crowd of 21,312 saw the Cavs take the lead at 11:35 of the third period and hold it until 1:12 when Elvin Hayes put the Bullets ahead with a three-point play. Dick Snyder led all Cleveland scorers with 26 points while Hayes topped the Bullets with 25.

Nuggets 127, Colonels 117

David Thompson scored 34 points and helped spark a 39point third quarter as Denver took a 3-2 lead in their ABA semifinal series with Kentucky. The game was decided in the third quarter when Denver, led by Thompson and Ralph Simpson, hit 16-of-22 shots. The Colonels, meanwhile, were hitting only 9-of-23. Simpson had 11 points and Thompson eight. High-point man for the Colonels, defending ABA champions, was Artis Gilmore with 26 points.

Putts Starting to Drop, Reasor Makes Early Move

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, having spent a pleasant morning enjoying one of spring's most perfect days, looked out upon the greenery of Lakewood Country Club Thursday and made his forecast.

"If someone doesn't break the course record before the day is over I'll be very surprised," said golf's Mr. Big. "The day is made for it."

The big round Nicklaus was expecting finally came late on the opening day of the $175,000 New Orleans Open, but there was still a surprise because it was Mike Reasor who shot it.

Reasor's seven-under-par 65 was only one shot off the course record and it put the little known seven-year tour veteran two shots in front of two other non-winners Wally Armstrong and Monty Kaser and defending champion Billy Casper.

But lurking three shots behind at 68 were 11 other golfers, including Nicklaus, British Open champ Tom Watson, leading money winner Hubert Green and John Mahaffey.

The four-under group also included Frank Conner, Bobby Wadkins, Dick Lotz, Victor Regalado, Lee Elder, Lyn Lott and David Graham.

Although Reasor is far from a household name, he has played well the past two weeks at the Magnolia Classic and Tallahassee while the more prominent members of the tour have been at the Masters and the Tournament of Champions.

Reasor finished in the top 15 of both events, but he has won less than $5,000 this year.

"I don't know what's happening all of a sudden," said the 36-year-old native of Seattle. "Maybe I'm beginning to jell.

"I've actually had a chance to win lately. But you just don't know how little difference there is between shooting a 65 and a 75. When you start making some putts you can suddenly be three under instead of seven over."

And Reasor made his share of putts Thursday over the par-72 layout— using his putter only 28 times. He ran in three putts of 30 feet or more and made four birdies in a row on the back nine to rush to the lead.

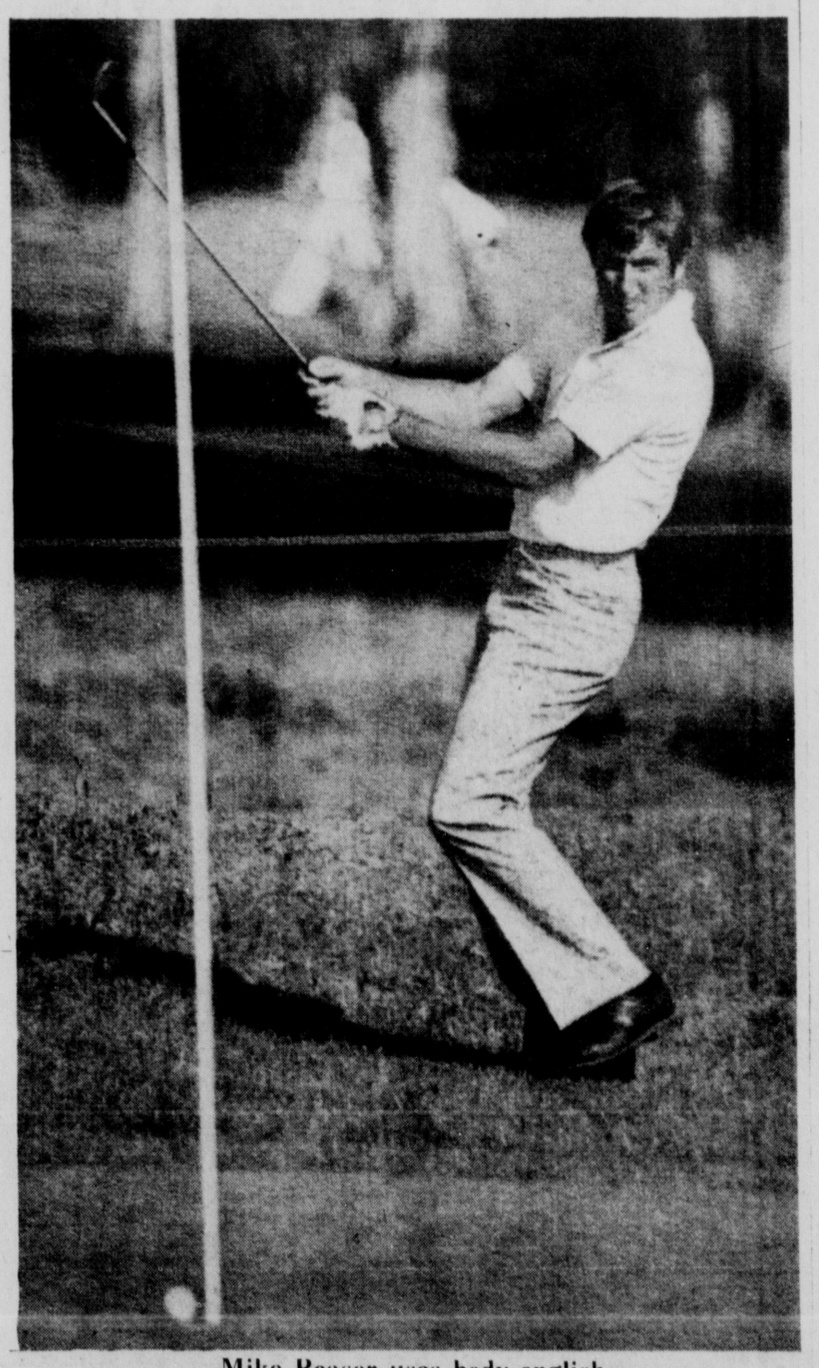

Of all the names close behind Reasor, the most noticeable one is naturally Nicklaus. The Golden Bear appeared ready to cut loose with one of those tournament breaking rounds since he hit plenty of excellent shots Thursday.

"I did not end up with the kind of round I might have had considering the way I played," he said. "I gave away a few shots and some of the shots I hit out there were as good as I could hit it."

The normally soggy Lakewood course has been dried out so much by lack of rains this week that it was playing very short for the pros. On some holes where two and three irons have been used in the past, no more than a nine iron is called for.

That resulted in a barrage of sub-par rounds and it appeared a below-par score would be needed just to make the cut.

Among the other starters Thursday, Tournament of Champions winner Don January fired a 70 and former U.S. Open champ Gene Littler came in with a 69. No. 2 money winner Ben Crenshaw was forced to withdraw with the flu.

Unimpressive Win for Honest Pleasure

LEXINGTON, Ken. (UPI) — The Bluegrass Stakes never figured to be much of a race with Honest Pleasure vastly superior to the rest of the field, but it was still a tremendous battle Thursday at Keeneland.

The three-year-old speedster fought a battle of will with his own jockey, Braulio Baeza, who refused to allow Honest Pleasure to unleash his great early speed.

The result was an unimpressive 1½ length victory over a nondescript field of seven and a leisurely 1:49 2-5 clocking for the 1⅛ mile route.

Trainer LeRoy Jolley and Baeza each claimed satisfaction with Honest Pleasure's ninth straight victory, which guaranteed the son of What A Pleasure-Pularia the favorite's role in the Kentucky Derby a week from Saturday.

"I was satisfied with his race," said the Panamian jockey. "The time? He won, what else do you want?"

"I was very satisfied with the race," said Jolley who also masterminded Foolish Pleasure's successful Kentucky Derby campaign last year. "He ran the last eighth of a mile in 12 seconds on a tiring track, that's good enough for me."

Unconcerned about the undistinguished field, Jolley and Baeza were interested more in whether or not they could get Honest Pleasure to contain his great speed in the race's early stages.

Moving immediately to the lead, Honest Pleasure was under tight rein by Baeza and never buried the field as expected of the 1-18 favorite. The Keeneland record crowd of 20,901 made Honest Pleasure such an overwhelming choice Proud Birdie was second choice at 18-1 and the $2.20 win payoff created a minus pool of $41,876.20 with win betting only.

Jolley's concern about getting Honest Pleasure to relax in the early stages of the race stems from a probable Kentucky Derby challenge by Bold Forbes, another speed demon.

Afraid his colt may get involved in a blistering early pace in the Derby, Jolley had instructed Baeza to race Honest Pleasure as well as possible in the Bluegrass. Despite the tight restraint and his slow early fraction, Honest Pleasure held a five-length lead after six furlongs.

Second place finisher Certain Roman, a 148-1 shot not eligible for the Derby, closed to within a length in the stretch before Baeza's moderate urging brought Honest Pleasure the $73,027.50 winner's purse in the $112,350 Bluegrass.

The Bluegrass winner has won the Kentucky Derby in six of the last 13 years, dating back to Baeza's 1963 victory aboard Chateaugay.

Winning his ninth straight race and 10th in 12 starts, Honest Pleasure increased his career earni ngs to $606,800. The victory virtually assured a compact Derby field and Proud Birdie for one, will not tangle again with last year's two-year old champion colt in Louisville.

Although Jolley professed satissfaction with Honest Pleasure's performance, the time of 1:49 2-5 pales in comparison to his victories in the Flamingo (1:46 4-7) and the Florida Derby (1:47 4-5).

Jolley used the Bluegrass as an experiment and what its conclusion was will not be known until the 102nd running of the Kentucky Derby.

They're Chasing Edie Jo

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Qualifying leader Edie Jo Neal established herself as the woman to beat after 16 games of the $86,000 Women's World Invitational, but she isn't about to figure how to spend the $13,000 top prize at the moment.

"As far as I'm concerned my 3,191 is just a total of pins knocked down at this point," said the Miami native.

Neal held a slim three-pin margin over runnerup Virginia Park of Whittier, Calif., going into today's match play. The field of 240 pros and amateurs was reduced to 80 survivors and will be pared to 24 after tonight's competition.

"The first tournament of the year is tough on everybody," Park said in explaining the low scores at the Brunswicksponsored event.

Lorrie Nichols, of Palatine, Ill., was third with 3,134 pins, 10 more than Shirley Garms, of Island Lake, Ill., the surprise leader at the 8-game stage.

Nobody in the field is averaging 200 pins a game at the tough Perry Hall lanes where veterns Loa Boxburger, Pat Costello, and Rita Justice failed to qualify.

"In a tournament like this, spares are crucial," said Neal, who has never won a tour event but was Miami Bowler of the Year four times. She reeled off games of 257, 199, 200 and 170 Thursday night in a leap from 11th position to the pacesetting role.

Introducing Amtrak's "Off-Peak" Excursion Fares.

We want to get you on the right track when you travel. So we're offering a 25% fare reduction during our off-peak hours. Which just happens to cover most of the week.

IT SAVES YOU GAS.

Mobil 1 is a revolutionary new synthesized engine lubricant that can save you gas, oil and engine wear.

Mobil 1 saves gas by reducing friction and engine drag. It will give the average car up to 10 extra miles per tankful.

It doesn't evaporate as quickly as ordinary motor oil; tests showed it cuts oil consumption by as much as 25 percent. Provided, of course, that your engine is in good mechanical condition.

Because it protects your engine better, it helps the engine last longer. And it doesn't thin out at very high temperatures or turn to slush in very low temperatures. It helps get you started even at 35 degrees below.

In fact, Mobil 1 simply outperforms premium motor oil.

If you want to save—save gas, save oil, save wear and tear on your engine—Mobil 1 is the one for you.

Just try Mobil 1 once. Even though it costs more, you'll never go back to ordinary oil.

The oil that saves you gas

Why should you buy a home now? Because there are big benefits you can't enjoy until you do! Like tax breaks. Remember — all the interest you pay is deductible — and so are property taxes. That alone could save you a pretty penny at tax time — ask any homeowner. Appreciation is another plus. With the median price of a single family dwelling going up almost 10% a year, your home will be worth at least that much more every year. The reverse is also true. The longer you wait to buy, the more you'll have to pay.

Let your REALTOR® figure this for you. He'll give you the financial information you need, plus the best advice and fairest treatment. If necessary, he can even help you find a source for mortgage funds — they're more plentiful than you think.

When you own your own home, you've got a lot going for you. Ask your REALTOR® for details.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 24

Your birthday today: Diversification comes naturally as activities and responsibilities expand. It's a year of on-the-job training or of refinement. New personal connections are gathered at such a fast rate it's hard to keep up with them; a few become emotionally important. Today's natives overindulge when young, prefer austerity when mature, go in for metaphysical disciplines and art.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You can take nothing for granted, delegate no chore of importance. Doing it yourself brings special benefits. Attend to health.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Share everything comfortably except decisions on what to do with your money. Leave that in a safe state, even if it means passing up a fabulous bargain.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Trivialities obscure the basic issues. Don't try to outspend competitors. Associates misunderstand your explanations. Mind your own affairs.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You've more energy, so it's a day to push professional or special assistance. Communicate without exaggeration or overelaborate wording.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Temptations range from an urge to gamble to a yen to explore hazardous places. Don't put aside inhibitions. Deal graciously with people who dislike you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There is more to the story than appears on the surface. Be sure not to miss the main point. Let those close to you sort matters out for themselves.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Other people think you're confused. Take time to gain perspective. Check out facts and figures so you have a better grasp of what's involved.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing goes as planned. Some matters are much smoother than hoped, others diverge in odd directions. Avoid speculative or high-risk actions. Slow down a bit.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Because it's your idea doesn't make it palatable to others. Find out what they'd do if you weren't on the scene. Let everybody cooperate.

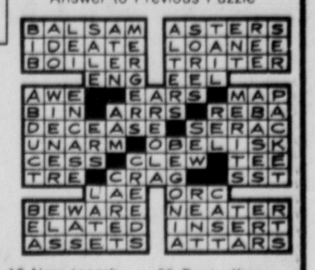

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): With a little enthusiastic showmanship you can attract support for personal projects. Make sure those you love hear the story again in reassuring terms.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Inanimate objects have no "rights" to remain as is, but if you want to change them, do so constructively. Hang on to what you've got, and don't sell it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Confidential proposals refer to situations that could get out of hand. Attend to home concerns first, giving minimum time to business.

This is a very sad week in the column. We have to chronicle another death. British internationalist and 1955 world champion Adam Meridith, who had lived in New York since 1956, died in January.

Adam wasn't a great technician, but he was a great psychologist and a man who could get into the bidding with almost nothing.

His three-heart bid as West was typical of his swashbuckling style as was his later jump to six hearts that helped get his vulnerable opponents all the way to seven spades. East liked his ace of clubs and doubled whereupon South ran to seven notrump.

Adam doubled that one and was faced with a lead problem.

That is, it would have been a lead problem for most players. It wasn't for him. He reasoned that South had to be well prepared for hearts, that if East had a spade trick it would keep and that the club suit was the one to lead. He did and South was down two on a hand that would make against any other lead.

Onteora's New Architects May Save $180,000 on Renovation

BOICEVILLE — The Onteora Central School District may have saved itself $180,000, if an architect's estimates are correct.

A spokesman for the New York City architectural firm of Kaminsky and Shiffer told the Board of Education Wednesday night that renovations to the junior-senior high school necessary to bring the facility up to state standards should cost only $8,500, not $189,000 that was suggested by another architect.

The renovation of the junior-senior high school was one of the major aspects of the recent controversy which saw Dr. Frank Marlow, Superintendent of Schools, suspended from his post by the Board of Education. It was determined earlier this year that the project was undertaken without final state approval, and it was believed that the entire building would have to be rewired in order for the district to receive state aid for the project.

At the urging to Dr. John Keough, who served as acting superintendent during Marlow's suspension and then returned to his duties as business administrator when Marlow was restored to his post by the Commissioner of Education, the board hired another architect to give a second opinion on the renovation project.

That second opinion turned out to be considerably more encouraging than the first. Inspectors with the New York City architectural firm found a number of significant items necessary for state approval.

Among the items eliminated was an acoustical drop ceiling that would have cost $35,000. Kaminsky and Shiffer determined that there is nothing in the stated education department regulations which require such an item.

The architects also determined that electrical wiring in the building is sufficient to meet state standards, and need not be replaced, and that a proposal to relamp 40 classrooms is not necessary because "all the classrooms meet or surpass state lighting requirements."

One problem which remains involves a new art classroom in the high school. It was initially determined that the district would either have to air condition the room or declassify it as a classroom. The New York City architects, however, said that installation of a new, manually operated skylight, at a cost of $7,000, would bring the room up to state standards.

The architects also noted that several exit lights and signs would have to be replaced, at an estimated cost of $500.

The fee for the second architectural study is $1,300, which is not included in the new $8,500 renovation pricetag.

Board of Education member Sam Mercer said Thursday that a spokesman for the state education department has already given his assurances that $8,500 in renovation work, as outlined by the architectural firm, will be sufficient to meet state specifications. A spokesman for the school district added that with final SED approval the district will be eligible for approximately $47,000 in state aid for the original renovation project, which has heretofore been withheld.

Dr. Keough, who spent Thursday in Albany seeking approval from education department officials, said the $8,500 project will also be eligible for state aid.

The school board, by a unanimous vote, passed a resolution Wednesday night stating that the "non-conforming items" will be corrected during the 1976-77 school year. The money for the project, said Keough, will be submitted to the voters this Spring as part of the total budget package for 1976-77 and, if approved, will be awarded on a competitive bid basis.

The school board also complimented Keough for his $180,000 suggestion that the district hire another architect ... a suggestion that may pay unexpected dividends to district taxpayers.

Kiwanis Honoring Canada

KINGSTON—Members of the Kiwanis Club of Kingston will mark our nation's traditional friendliness with Canada at their April 28 luncheon with guest speaker Guy Verreault of Quebec City.

The City of Kingston has joined in remembrance of Canada-United States Goodwill Week, proclaimed nationally and locally from April 25 through May 1.

April 28 is the anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement in 1817, the sole legal basis for 5,000 miles of unfortified boundary between the two nations.

GUY VERREAULT

It virtually demilitarizes the boundary by calling for a limitation of naval vessels on the waterways betwsen the countries and instructing those vessels deemed necessary to interfere in no way with peaceful passage of merchant ships of either country.

This agreement can bs terminated by a simple six-month notice on the part of either the United States and Canada, a concrete example of the fact that the most tenuous of international treaties can survive where trust is involved,and the most complex and binding agreements are worthless scraps of paper where no trust is involved.

The Kiwanis International became involved in U.S.-Canada relations when in 1923 President Warren G. Hardin became the first U.S. president to visit Canada while in office. Harding, a Kiwanian, spoke at Stanley Park, Vancouver, British Columbia on the friendship which existed between the two countries, and two years after his death fellow Kiwanians from both sides of the border erected the Harding International Goodwill Memorial at Stanley Park.

The Kiwanis Club found this msmorial an inspiration for 36 Kiwanis peace markers built in later years, all but two located at principal ports of sntry bstween the two nations.

Each bears this inscription:"This unfortified boundary line between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America should quicken the remembrance of the more than a century old friendship between these two countries—a lesson of peace to all nations."

Kingston Kiwanis speaker Guy Verreault has been involved in public relations and publicity promotion for the past 16 years. Born in Quebec City, he was PR officer for the Hydro Quebec at the Manicouagan Dam Project, the largest multiple arch dam in the world, and is now associated with the Organizing Committee for the 1976 Olympic games at Montreal.

Five Million in New Garbage Suits

Plattekill Officials Might Have to Bear All the Legal Liability

PLATTEKILL — The lawsuits are piling up against the Town of Plattekill and five of its elected officials.

Earlier this week a $2.5 million legal suit was filed against the town, the supervisor and four town board members by Dutchess Sanitation Inc. of Poughkeepsie. Now, says Harold L. Mangold, attorney for the Poughkeepsie garbage firm, two additional suits, each for another $2.5 million, have been filed. All three were filed together as three causes of action.

The first suit alleges that the town's enforcement of a local ordinance prohibiting the disposal of garbage from outside the town is an "interference with the use of property," which has affected Dutchess Sanitation's ability to operate its business.

The second suit charges the town and representatives named with "inducing or causing a breach of contract." The third action alleges "conspiracy to commit fraudulent or illegal actions resulting in damages."

Named in the suits, filed in behalf of Joseph Fiorello, president of Dutchess Sanitation, were Town Supervisor Dominick Ferrante and four members of the town board. They have until May 20 to file answering papers in Ulster County Supreme Court.

Mangold notes, however, that the suits have been filed against the people named as both elected representatives and individuals.

"If it turns out that the actions they performed were not carried out as authorized in the positions they hold," he says, "they could be personally liable."

In that event, the town could not pay for their defense or hire attorneys to defend them They would have to retain their own lawyers.

The battle of the Plattekill dump has been the subject of much controversy in recent weeks. The local landfill, owned by Dutchess Sanitation, was closed by court order last week. Fiorello was arraigned in Plattekill Town Court earlier this month and legal actions and court hearings have been held on several fronts from the local to the state to the U.S. District level.

Paltz Prof Hit By Fund Charge

NEW PALTZ — Kent A. Reeves, professor of elementary education at the State University College at New Paltz and director of the college's 375-acre field campus at Ashokan, has been "suspended" as field camp director, pending an "investigation," college sources confirmed Thursday.

The investigation is said to involve charges of mismanagement of funds by Reeves.

The camp director had been relieved of his duties following "certain allegations" pertaining to financial mismanagement and possible embezzlement, according to the colleges public realtions office..

Camp Director Relieved of Job

The camp overseen by Reeves until his suspension is used by SUC New Paltz students for both educational and recreation. Outdoor art and other classes are held there; an experimental homestead farm is operated on ths site; picnicking, swimming and biking are among the recreational pursuits.

The Ashokan field campus is operated un der the auspices of the Faculty-Student Association (FSA) at the college, a non-profit group chartered under state law as part of the college administrative structure. To the FSA has fallen the responsibility of investigating the allegations brought against Reeves.

Frank Tramontano, budget controller and chairman of the board of directors of FSA declined to go into details on the charges against Reeves until a committee has been formed to talk to the suspended director. With the college currently in Easter recess, no committee action is expected before May 11.

"We want to solve it within ourselves," said Tramontano, while admitting that questions have been posed as to whether FSA "has the right to investigate the charges" under Reeves' contract.

That contract created further hubbub on campus when college spokesmen confirmed Reeves would continue under full salary as an environmental education instructor. The complexities are further compounded by a financial arrangement that will allow Reeves, at least for the time being, to continue drawing his salary as director of the camp he ran for 11 years but no longer heads.

Tramontano says Reeves' salary is paid on a shared basis. One-third of his salary comes from the education budget since he is tenured and teaches environmental education one day a week. Two-thirds of his salary is paid out of the student affairs (personnel) budget for his work as camp director.

What that means exactly on a yearly basis is that Reeves draws $12,000 from student affairs; $6,000 from the educational department as a teacher; and $2,700 from the Faculty-Student Association as payment for rent.

Since those sums hardly add up to a big jump from directing finances to mismanagement of funds, the FSA investigating committee will apparently be delving elsewhere. And, if the charges are lodged in any area, allegations of mismanagement and possible embezzlement would have to come in the specific category of the camp's income, which is about $140,000 a year.

The camp Reeves had been running is located in the Town of Olive, where the suspended director formerly served as Town Democratic chairman. A resident of Tonche Terrace, Shokan, he had been appointed to the party in the spring of 1973 and served until the summer of 1975.

Although conservatives in Portugal have criticized Cuba for sending troops to aid the Marxist liberation movement in the former Portuguese colony of Angola, Thursday's attack was the first against Cuban diplomatic facilities or personnel.

Step to the Left

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem leftists set up a new municipal government in Lebanon's second largest city today, taking their first major step to implement a threat to establish a "revolutionary government" in Lebanon.

A statement by leftist leaders in the coastal city of Tripoli said their "local administration" would include representatives from various political groups, workers unions, former civil authorities and police.

Traver Hollow Bridge Residents:

'Them's Fighting Words'

OLIVE — New York State Supreme Court might think that New York City is proceeding at a reasonable pace in the repair or rebuilding of Traver Hollow

Joyce Carney

Bridge which links West Shokan and Boiceville, but "them's fighting words" to residents on either side of the span who must travel 14 miles instead of two to reach each other.

"We won't let up," Joyce Carney, a West Shokan ambulance squad leader told the Freeman this week, referring not only to the town's court fight against the city, but its organized media blitz intended to move the city to action.

New York City officials declared recently that it would be three years before the bridge is reopened. Although several New York City newspapers and a television station have aired Olive's problems, so far nothing concrete in the way of a commitment from the city has been forthcoming.

A week ago Robert Low of the city's Environmental Protection Agency came to town in a spirit of neighborliness but made no promises.

Former Olive Supervisor Lester Davis, who owns Shokan's only store, feels the city will move on the project eventually but will take its time."

Retired New York City employe Walter Long said he knew the bridge needed repairing 15 years ago but "all the city did was patch it."

He doubts the city will do anything now "They're going to let us hang," he predicted.

Acknowledging that New York has money troubles of its own, retired school teacher Hope Miller of West Shokan nevertheless sees the situation as a "foolish imposition."

Walter Long

And an imposition it is—on the school children who must travel 28 extra miles a day, on the residents who would like to use the now inaccessible stores, library and meetings rooms, on anyone who drives a car.

Economic impact is also felt by the school system which estimates it will cost an additional $20,000 this year for transportation, by the highway department which must put in considerably more mileage and by residents who are burning up gasoline as well as energy in the long travels.

Hope Miller

The bridge closing has also produced a worry in that fire protection and ambulance services are hampered. Mrs.

That Ban Doesn't Cover Shad Fishing

KINGSTON—Commercial shad fishing in the Hudson River remains exempt from a Feb. 25 ban on commercial fishing by the Department of Environmental Conservation which is attempting to determine levels of the toxic chemical PCB in all fish in the river.

Just Continue Fishing for Now

A headline in Wednesday's Daily Freeman which read "No Shad, No Bass, No Herring," was erroneous in regard to the shad. The story noted, however, that the PCB content of 20 shad collected this month in the Tappan Zee Bridge area ranged from 1.2 parts per million to 8.9 parts, according to DEC Commissioner Ogden Reid. The federal Food and Drug Administration has set five parts per million as the limit for human consumption.

There has been no indication from Reid on when a final decision will be made on shad fishing, but Eugene Van Steenburg of 549 Delaware Avenue, a local shad fisherman for some 40 years, told the Freeman that Reid told him and other shad fishermen to continue fishing.

"He met with us at Bard College about three weeks ago," Van Steenburg told the Freeman. "I asked him whether I should buy new nets for this season. He told me to go ahead.' He told us the shad are safe to eat until we are notified differently." Van Steenburg said he has had no word from Reid's department since the Bard college meeting.

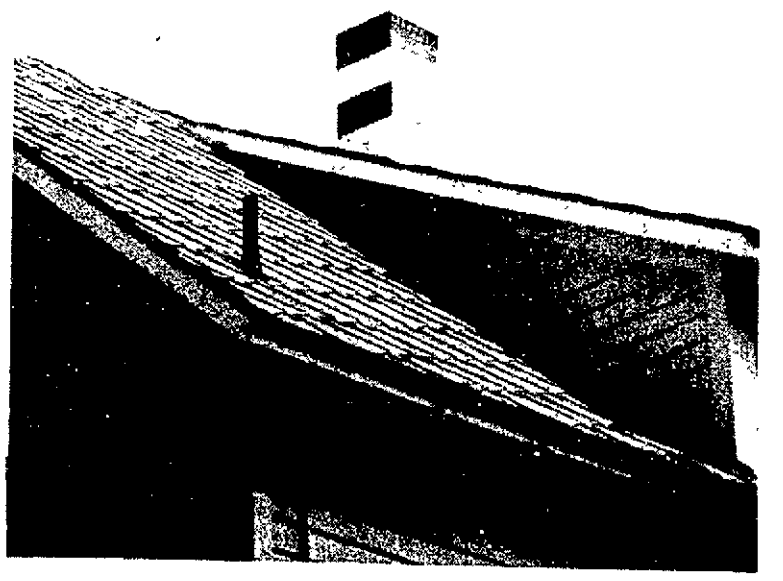

The fisherman also feels the shad scare over PCB's might be out of proportion. "They've found no PCBs in the shad row (eggs) and that's what we sell the most," said Van Steenburg.

Candidate Nights

KINGSTON—The League of Women Voters and a federation of PTO organizations will be sponsoring separate candidates nights next week preparatory to the Kingston Schools Consolidated annual school board elections on May 4. The Edson, Lake Katrine, Clifford Miller, J. Watson Bailey and Chambers Schools parent-teacher organizations will co-sponsor a candidates night on Tuesday, April 27, at 8 p m at the Edson School Auditorium on Merilina Avenue. Moderator will be James B. Thompson, former news director at Station WGHQ. Each candidate will be allowed a five minute statement. Questions from the floor will follow

The League of Women Voters of Mid-Ulster will hold their candidate night at George Washington School on Wall Street at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 29. Candidates will offer position statements followed by rebuttal Questions from the floor will also be allowed.

There are five candidates for the two vacancies on the board. Ronald Meyer, an incumbent seeking reelection; Joseph Feraca, a former board member, Len Cane, a candidate last year, Harold Van Allen, a former member of the Hurley School Board and William Jackson, chairman of the Ulster County Conservative Party

Numbers Have It

KINGSTON—The latest state population projections for school enrollment in the Kingston Schools Consolidated District show a figure of 2,700 high school students for the 1979-80 school year, a figure some 400 students below projections in 1972.

Joseph Feraca, a candidate for a seat on the city school board, says that's even more reason for not building a new high school as he now advocates Feraca also points out that those 1972 projections figured on 2,662 students this year for Kingston High School this year when the actual figure is 2,200.

Feraca cites a number of other reasons for not building a new high school: the economy, tax assessment reductions against the school district, the "very real" possibility that the district will have to pay an additional $3 million in excludables, the state's freezing of school aid formulas.

"Therefore I propose," said the former school board president, "that if the library property next to the high school is purchased, at least four to six classes could be made available in the main building by moving the library that is in Hall-B. the library annex and the resource classes in the school With the use of 9th period, and along with some refurbishing that would take this district through its critical time without interfering with the education of our students or disrupting our neighborhood school system" he said.

Jackson on New School

KINGSTON—William Jackson, candidate for election to the Kingston Schools consolidated Board of Education on May 4, citing a drop in enrollment of almost 200 students at Kingston High School this year, says that proponents of a new high school "cannot justify their stand with present school population projections"

Stated Jackson, "the school population in the Kingston Consolidated District is decreasing and will continue to decrease in the forseeable future From the beginning of this school year to February the high school enrollment has dropped by 189 students It appears that the September enrollment will show a further decrease"

Jackson went on to criticize the position that money can be a cure-all to education problems "The unyielding stand of those who advocate a new school is probably based on the erroneous theory that the more money you pump into an educational system the more education you receive The opposite seems to be true As more and more money is spent for education in the nation, the educational level of high school graduates is decreasing" Jackson then cited cost per student figures that show New York 32 per cent higher than New Jersey and 65 per cent higher than California

"The Kingston City Consolidated have been offering a good education to our students and we should strive to continue this performance," he said "To degrade and discredit our school system by insisting quality education is dependent upon a new and luxurious high school is not in the best interests of our students or taxpayers," Jackson said

Martin in Saugerties

SAUGERTIES — Robert Martin, a 14-year resident of Saugerties, has announced his candidacy for Saugerties School Board for a three-year term

Philosophically, he would like to arrive at a wellrounded, consistent plan for each school year, "so we will have an action board" He noted that without the cooperation of the teachers, school board, administration and citizens of Saugerties, the people who suffer the most will be the students of the schools.

Martin is involved in community activities such as the town's recreation committee, cub scouts, Mt Marion Plattekill Reformed Church and Saugerties Athletic Association He is past president of Saugerties Jaycees, past treasurer and elder of his church and has participated in the annual Boy Scout fund-raising drives

Golf, auto repair and basketball are his hobbies He resides with his wife and two children at 21 Appletree Drive.

Betty Kasper in Race

BOICEVILLE—Betty Kasper has declared her candidacy for the Onteora Board of Education, stating,"The citizens of the community have every right to guide the district in its attempt to educate all the children."

The mother of seven children, all of whom attend district schools, Mrs. Kasper expressed several of her beliefs in a news release, including one that "educational spending must directly affect the students and not be used for bureaucratic expansion or other frills."

Her experience in the district, apart from through her children, is as president of the Bennett Elementary School PTA; member of the Onteora Citizens Committee; service on the steering committee that organized the Parent Teacher Student Association at the junior high school; and as a voluntser teacher aide at Bennett School

Mrs. Kasper's experience in preparing the PTA budget and her involvement in fund raising projects, she feels, underscore sound fiscal management and her teaching experiences at Our Lady of LaSalette Church in Boiceville, she said, have given her sensitivity to the needs of educators.

"I believe that students and especially parents must become more involved in school operations," quoted Mrs. Kasper,and she obviously intends to do just that.

Do You Litter? . . . It Costs You, Too

ALBANY — A renewed anti-litter effort by motorists is being urged by State Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler in view of the $2.9 million it cost taxpayers last year to have the department remove litter on New York's 14,000 miles of state highways.

"The cost is up from $2.5 million a few years ago," Schuler said.

Since the DOT budget for maintenance is more restricted than ever, and because litter can be dangerous to motorists, as well as being unsightly and, in view of the fact that Saturday is "National Keep America Beautiful Day", Schuler urges habitual use of proper containers for discards.

The commissioner suggested that money that is now spent on litter pickup, could be far better spent on highway safety and driving convenience.

Newburgh Educator To R.I.

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) William F. O'Hara, president of Mount St. Mary College in Newburgh, N.Y., this summer will become Bryant College's fifth president.

School officials Wednesday said O'Hara will arrive Aug. 1 to succeed Dr. Harry Evarts who resigned last spring, bowing to trustee pressure after a student strike and faculty protest concerning his administration

William P. Robinson Jr., chairman of the college governing board, called O'Hara eminently qualified to carry forward Bryant's educational goals. I believe he will work with faculty and administrators to inspire our students for leadership roles in their undergraduate careers."

O'Hara, 43, has been president of Mount St. Mary's for four years. He also teaches constitutional law. From 1967 to 1972 he was director of the Southeastern campus of the University of Connecticut.

Bryant is a four-year college specializing in business education. It has an enrollment of 2,600 undergraduates, nearly 2,000 evening students and 600 graduate students.

Attica Windup With Bid for Disciplinary Action, Clemency

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Five years of investigations into the 1971 Attica prison riot apparently ended Thursday with a recommendation by Special Prosecutor Alfred J. Scotti that disciplinary action be taken against more than a dozen state police and prison guards and clemency granted several inmates.

"It's come to an end", Scotti said after submitting his recommendations to Gov. Hugh Carey and other state officials Thursday.

He said the disciplinary action against the law officers was warranted because of the "unjustified gunfire" during the retaking of the prison and the "abysmal failure" to undertake a proper investigation immediately thereafter.

Scotti also proposed that the governor grant varying degrees of clemency to several of the 10 inmates convicted of crimes related to the four-day prison rebellion.

Forty-three died during the September 1971 riot, including 10 hostages and 29 inmates killed by bullets fired by state police or correctional personnel in the retaking of the prison.

Noting that "although a substantial period of time has elapsed since the events at Attica," Scotti said, "it is our opinion that any departmental disciplinary action would still be timely."

However, Carl Gray, executive director of the union representing 5,000 correction officers, said, "If the law says that someone brought on trial 4½ years after an incident can't get a fair trial, the same principal would apply to a law enforcement officer. He deserves the same protection as anyone else."

Gray said the state's contract with Council 82 of the Security and Law Enforcement Council bars anyone from being brought up on disciplinary charges more than a year after an incident occurred.

Scotti was appointed by Carey last Dec. 16 after allegations that the original Attica investigation had overlooked wrongdoing by law enforcement personnel.

In recommending the dropping of further prosecutorial action against law enforcement offices last Feb. 26, Scotti told a state supreme court justice he had found that "the unavailability of evidence required for successful prosecution ... was caused by flagrant deficiencies in the state police investigation of the retaking."

"The conduct described is criminal conduct, notwithstanding the fact that these men were not indicted," Scotti said.

He recommended disciplinary action especially as a result of what he called the "abysmal failure" of the state police to undertake proper investigative action immediately following the retaking.

Scotti's findings were immediately challenged by Pat Carroll, President of the 3,200-member State Police Benevolent Association. Carroll noted that two separate grand juries had rejected Scotti's charges against the law officers and had failed to recommend any disciplinary action.

"Who is Scotti trying to kid?" Carroll demanded.

Scotti's report was not made public, but a summary was issued by the governor's public relations office.

Scotti said his recommendations completed his work in the Attica matter. The two grand juries have been dismissed and Scotti said Thursday, "There's nothing left to be done."

The recommendations pertaining to troopers were forwarded to Carey and to William G. Connelie, the state police superintendent. A report regarding prison guards was presented to Benjamin Ward, state correctional services commissioner.

On Scotti's recommendation earlier this year, judges dismissed all charges against 45 former inmates and a state trooper, the only law enforcement officer charged.

Eight other cases involving law enforcement officers which two special grand juries had voted not to indict, were not resubmitted because Scotti said "available evidence" did not warrant such action.

Sixty-three men were originally charged in connection with the nation's bloodiest prison uprising, but only two former inmates were convicted of riot-related crimes after jury trials.

Eight pleaded guilty to reduced charges, four were found innocent by juries, three died with charges pending and one man, Mario Gonzales, has been declared a fugitive with charges still pending for intentional killing of another inmate.

A spokesman for the governor said the names of the inmates for which Scotti recommended clemency and of the troopers and guards would be made public only if the special prosecutor's recommendations were implemented.

Victory for Cunningham But Bronx Leader Not So Lucky

NEW YORK (UPI) — A law that would have required Democratic State Chairman Patrick J. Cunningham to testify without immunity before a Bronx grand jury or lose his job has been declared unconstitutional by a federal court.

A special three-judge panel unanimously ruled Thursday that Section 22 of the state election law violated Cunningham's Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination.

Meanwhile, Bronx Democratic district leader John A. Whalen was indicted on charges of destroying evidence in an effort to thwart the grand jury probe.

The indictment said the grand jury, empaneled under Special State Prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, was trying to determine whether Whalen and Cunningham "had taken a bribe from an individual who had been appointed and is serving as a judge of the New York City Criminal Court."

It said the grand jury subpoenaed the records of the Regency Chauffeur Service Inc., which Whalen heads, to find out if the defendant and Cunningham had used the firm to "launder" the bribe.

However, after failing to block the subpoena, Whalen "tampered with and suppressed these records by concealing them and destroying them," according to the indictment.

Nadjari has accused Cunningham of being "at the center of the corrupt marketplace of judgeships" in The Bronx.

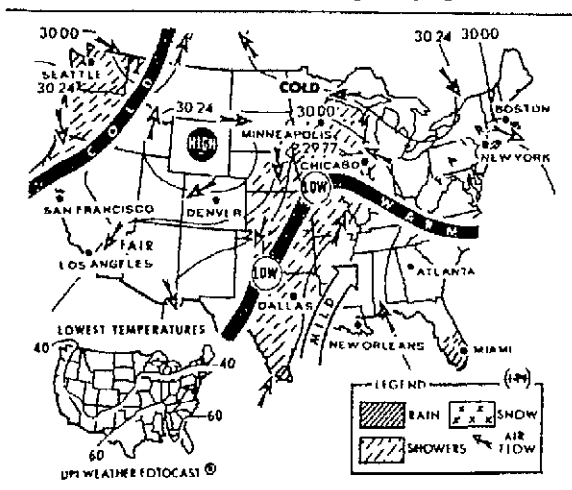

In its ruling, the federal court said that Cunningham may be compelled to testify "on pain of imprisonment or fine for refusal to testify" if he is granted immunity against prosecution.

U.S. District Judge Charles Tenney said "in striking down the statute that would penalize Cunningham for the exercise of his constitutional rights, we do not condone corruption in public office if and when it is shown to exist."

Cunningham, who is also the Bronx Democratic chairman, refused to sign a waiver of immunity when he appeared on April 5 before the grand jury and was not questioned.

He therefore faced automatic dismissal from both state and county party chairmanships under the state statute now declared unconstitutional.

Cunningham was re-elected Bronx County Chairman on Monday and is up for reelection today as state Chairman.

Local Reaction on Traver Hollow

Carney also pointed out that New York City is not maintaining its roads in the area adequately and ambulances and fire trucks must, of necessity, travel at lesser speeds because of poor road conditions.

Robert Platz, a summer resident who plans to live in Olive all year round, expressed the concern of many of Olive's senior citizens who are worried about the time it takes to get a sick person to the hospital.

Davis feels the city's priorities are wrong, pointing out that other bridges in the area are being repaired by the city but Traver Hollow "the main one has been let go." ★

Library circulation is down one-third, according to Mrs. Rosalie Burgher, librarian for Olive Free Library, partly because the schools are on the other side of the bridge. She said one of the school librarians has been carrying books back and forth for the students every two weeks

"A detour is desperately needed," many residents feel, including Mrs. Carney, who has expressed interest in an alternate route, advanced recently by the county and the state. Each said it would provide expertise and the county would provide the labor and the loan of a bridge "if" the City of New York picks up the tab.

The urgency of a detour was driven home further by Mrs. Carney as she explained that the average ambulance trip from Olive to a hospital in Kingston involves about 52 to 60 miles round trip depending upon point of pickup. And, the ambulance responds to an average of 150 to 200 miles a year.

Penny Wise, Pound Foolish

It's not enough that court cases in Ulster County are well behind schedule Unwise frugality on the part of our county legislature caused still another delay early this week

Because of construction at the county jail and on Wall Street outside the court house, County Judge Raymond J Mino was forced to delay, a trial because 1 ) open windows in the court room had to be closed due to the construction noises and 2 ) when the windows were closed, the lack of air conditioning made it unbearable with temperatures outside above 80,and more than that, in the court room

This delay wouldn't have occurred if the legislature had acted on a resolution at its April 8 meeting to spend up to $450 for a public address system to be used in the court room while construction is taking place outside

Instead, the resolution was referred to committee and it could might just stay in committee until construction is finished and there will be no need for a PA system

Those lawmakers who are overzealous in saving money at the wrong time, should get this resolution out of committee and pass it at the next meeting When the public address system has outlived its usefulness at the court house it can be used at the county's parks In other words, the money will be well spent

Lauds 'Help Article'

Dear Editor

You are to be congratulated for publishing articles such as found on Page 11 of today's Freeman (April 16) The section entitled Growing Older Heart Attack! How Others Can Help is a very thought provoking article and could save someone's life I began to think of who I would contact in the Old Hurley area if I suddenly came upon the situation where a heart attack was occurring Most doctors have answering services and at the wrong time of the day they would be unable to be of service I do not know if the State Police are equipped to give this kind of help Maybe the Hurley Fire Department would be able to help but at this point I do not know what service could be rendered

It occurred to me that a service club such as the Lions Club might be the organization in an area that might have trained members who could be available and be of life saving service to someone in the community

Rescue squads are doing service that is certainly above and beyond the call of duty What does Hurley have along this line of activity? However your article points out in a poignant manner the importance of having interested competent and trained individuals in a community who could be of service if an emergency arises I tip my hat to the Freeman in the publication of this article

Answer to Atkinson

Dear Editor

Congratulations Mr Atkinson you have showed your true colors which are not Red White and Blue the true colors of true Americans Your colors seem to be Pinko We will put our service records of being an American against yours any day in the week if you have one and let's see who is the true American and who is unAmerican An American is dedicated to his Country his loved ones his freedom and willing to defend it with his life if necessary

From your statement you are more concerned with the 200 000 civilians of Vietnam that were abused in prison camps which were either Communist inclined or affiliated than you are with our over 1400 POW's and MIA's who are Americans and always will be Americans in the annals of history and never forgotten by true Americans and their brothers in arms

Let's clear up your statement Mr Atkinson on Veterans Organizations The Veterans Organizations of these United States of ours, is the backbone of our nation keeping it on the righteous path and fighting legislation by our legislators on a State and Federal level that could impair the liberties we now all enjoy and impair them if some of them had their way by trying to confuse the issues and laws for veterans and non veterans alike

That's why our Country America has and will endure the trials and tribulations that have encountered us and by sure determination persistance and the will to be free that people like you will never change our ideas principles and freedoms with your double talk and indoctrinated ideology you believe in which is not ours

In your statement you mentioned cowardice and conscience the latter can possibly be excused and there are provisions for it the other no way in hell You also showed your colors Mr Atkinson by completely avoiding the issue of our POW's and MIA's which proves in itself your concern for this country does not exist in any way form or manner

Your way of thinking and ideals are not of ours and never will be

So the solution to it all is if you don't like the ways of America and can't seem to believe in her and her principles then it is time for you Mr Atkinson to leave and try to find a better one Bon Voyage

Respectfully
JOSEPH C HASSETT
Commander for Disabled American Veterans and Ulster County Veterans Association of Ulster County

Food for Thought

Dear Editor

This article caught my eye and I thought many would get a kick out of it

Once upon a time there was a little red hen who scratched about the barnyard until she uncovered some grains of wheat She called her neighbors and said If we plant this wheat we shall have bread to eat Who will help me plant it?

Not I said the cow and the duck and the goose

Then I will said the little red hen and she did The wheat grew and ripened

Who will help me reap my wheat? asked the hen

Not I said the duck and the pig and the goose

At last came the time to bake the bread

'Who will help me bake bread? asked little red hen

' That would be overtime for me said the cow

I'd lose my welfare benefits said the duck and so on

So red hen baked five loaves and held them up for all to see They all demanded a share but red hen said No

Capitalistic luck cried the duck

I demand equal rights shouted the goose

Then they painted an unfair picket sign and marched around shouting obscenities

The government agent came and told the hen she must not be greedy But I earned the bread she cried

Exactly said the agent That is the wonderful free enterprise system Anyone in the barnyard can earn as much as he wants but under government regulations the productive workers must divide their product with the idle

And they lived happily ever after But the little red hen's neighbors wondered why she never again baked bread

Ideal or What?

Dear Editor

'Megawatts for the people," said a letter writer recently

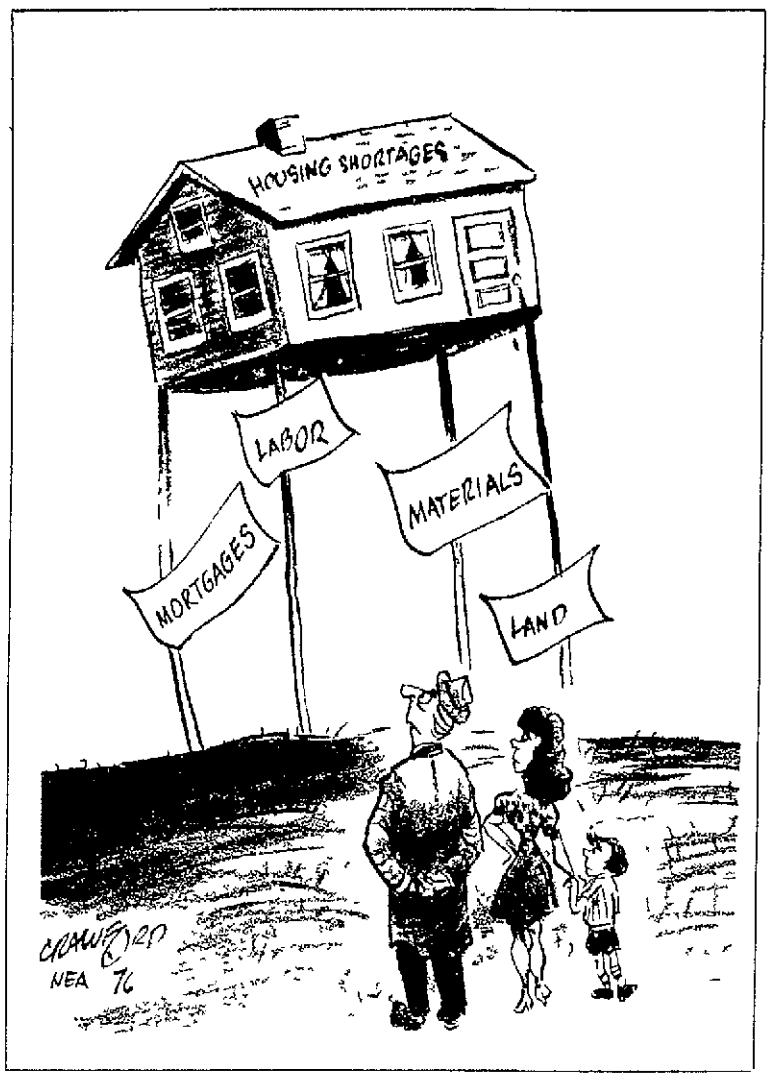

What a beautiful idea! What an inspired way of describing municipal power, where the people paying reduced prices for energy are providing such profits to the municipality that property taxes can be reduced to tolerable levels

On second thought, did Central Hudson or one of its employes think up this beautiful slogan to distract the people from opposing the utilities continuing campaign to increase rates?

Perhaps 'Megawatts for the people' should take its place alongside Simon Legree's 'Full employment for slaves' or the National Association of Manufacturers 'Every workingman has the right to bargain for himself,' or "Billions for defense contractors but not a cent for cities

Megawatts for the people – an ideal or a red herring?

A Bully of a Route

WASHINGTON — Americans are taught that their history consists of three episodes 1776, the Civil War and NOW This allows men like Governor Reagan to rally their countrymen to resist the outrageous demands of the Panamanians who're demanding OUR canal, the one we bought and paid for fair and square That doesn't even match up with how Theodore Roosevelt, the President who signed the treaty, described how the thing went down "If I had followed conventional, conservative methods I should have submitted a dignified state paper to the Congress and the debate would have been going on yet, but I took the canal zone

Before he got around to taking in 1903 the United States had been dabbling in the Isthmus for better than 40 years For one reason or another American troops had been landed there in 1856 1860 1873 (twice) 1885 and 1900 When not landing the Marines Americans had built a railroad across the Isthmus By 1901 that railroad was represented by William Cromwell of Sullivan & Cromwell later to be John Foster Dulles law firm

While Americans were constructing the railroad the French were spending a fortune sum failing to build the canal The French went bankrupt their company was reorganized under the leadership of a gentleman by the name of Philippe Bunau Varilla At the same time a mysterious firm called the Panama Canal Company of America was incorporated in Cromwell's law offices for the purpose of taking over the assets of the quasi defunct French firm

Sometime around 1900 Bunau Varilla and Cromwell formed an alliance Their purpose was to get the United States government which was inclined toward a canal through Nicaragua to change its mind opt for the Panamanian Isthmus and in the process buy out the worthless French claim for a very large amount of money Bunau Varilla went to see Sen Mark Hanna the most powerful Republican politician of his age and abruptly convinced him to favor a Panamanian route At the same time Cromwell made a $60 000 contribution to the GOP Roosevelt decided Panama was a bully route also

The ducks were in a row The only obstacle was the Republic of Colombia because kiddies in 1903 Panama wasn't an independent nation It was a province of Colombia A treaty had to be drawn up, and was one which gave Colombia 10 million dollars and the stockholders whoever they were by this time of the French company $40 million The treaty also stipulated that the Colombian government gave up all rights to sue for any portion of the $10 million as well as all police powers in the contemplated canal zone

President Marroquin of Colombia didn't dare submit such an unfavorable treaty to his Congress for ratification 'If we do not yield (concessions) and the North Americans determine to build the canal they will open it without stopping at trifles and then we will lose more sovereignty than we should lose by making the concessions they seek History will say of me he wrote that I ruined the Isthmus scandalously injuring the rights of my country

The Colombians rejected the treaty and Roosevelt reacted by calling them Dagos cat rabbits contemptible little creatures and 'homicidal corruptionists But Bunau Varilla was of a more practical turn of mind

From Panama he summoned Dr Manuel Amador a physician who worked for Cromwell's railroad to room 1162 of the old Waldorf Astoria Hotel sometimes referred to as the cradle of Panamanian liberty and there he presented the doctor with $100 000 supplied by J P Morgan, a secret code a Declaration of Independence a draft of the new nation's Constitution and the soon to be-born Republic's flag thoughtfully designed and sewn by Madame Bunau Varilla Thus equipped the doctor was sent back to Panama, where the section hands from the railroad were recruited into the revolutionary army

With the arrival of the U S cruiser Nashville in Panamanian waters the flag of liberty was run up and when Colombian soldiers arrived in the province to put down the insurrection the railroad refused to transport them The new Republic was immediately recognized and its ambassador plenipotentiary who was surprise surprise the enterprising Bunau Varilla had the treaty signed within 10 days

A particularly nice touch in all of this is Article III of the Panamanian Constitution which says that the nation's sovereignty is secondary to any treaty that has or will be signed with the United States

As for the money $40 million was paid to J P Morgan who was to transfer it to the stockholders in the French company Their names have never been made public August Belmont was suspected as being one of them but nothing is known for certain because Cromwell refused to divulge them to a Senate committee What is on the record is that Cromwell got an $800 000 legal fee for his work a stupendous sum in terms of 1903 dollars

In 1921 the United States paid Colombia $25 million indemnity not out of a sense of guilt but because Secretary of Interior Albert Fall, later sent to jail for corruption warned that if we didn't the Colombians would sell their oil concession to the English Progress has come to Panama as well The Panamanians have replaced Madame Bunau Varilla's flag with one of their own design Ah the joys of freedom

Cambodian Horror Stor

WASHINGTON — The world's two most brutal dictatorships, according to the evidence in intelligence files, are Cambodia and North Korea

Cambodia's Communist firebrands have turned their country into a nation of cattle Cities have been emptied and the population has been herded into the hinterland, with no apparent thought for their welfare Hundreds of thousands have fallen by the wayside.

In North Korea, the populace has been terrorized by the government for two generations Hundreds of thousands have been imprisoned or banished to remote mountainous areas for no other reason than that some anonymous bureaucrat decided they were "unreliable." At least half of the population is kept under varying surveillance.

These are human sagas, epic events. Yet the world press has paid scant attention, devoting its energies instead to exposing corruption across the Cambodian border in Thailand and excoriating President Chung Hee Park on the other side of the 38th parallel in South Korea.

In both Communist dictatorships, the rulers have pulled down the blinds, and they carefully control the light that leaks through. Yet the harsh facts are available from eye witnesses — not political opponents whose reports might be suspect but refugees who have escaped from the horrors Their stories have been checked and verified by intelligence analysts a hundred times over

The Khmer Rouge regime, after seizing power in Cambodia, drove the people out of the cities, en masse They were routed out of their homes, turned out of hospitals, prodded out of sick beds

The mass exodus developed into a death march, without parallel in modern times Countless Cambodians were herded like human cattle to unknown destinations, clutching a few bundled belongings, carrying their invalids on stretchers a few hobbling on crutches The scenes described by the escapees were horrendous

The exodus routes were littered with the corpses of the old the sick and the weak who couldn't keep up The Khmer guerrillas who policed these human highways provided almost no food, water or medicine

As the crowning cruelty the men and women were deliberately separated to break up families Subsequently the Khmer Rouge ordered the people to take new names to make it more difficult for loved ones to find one another

The survivors were distributed throughout the countryside in groups with instructions to build huts and plant rice Until the first harvest came in the displaced city people subsisted on frogs insects and wild roots

Why did the Khmer Rouge uproot the populace? The story has been put out that the new rulers are agrarian fundamentalists who wanted to get the people back to the soil and make Cambodia self sufficient But intelligence analysts have concluded based upon the jigsaw pieces they have been able to put together that the real reason for scattering the people was to keep them under control

At the time of the takeover the Khmer Rouge had only an estimated 40 000 troops to control a population of over seven million The cities were populated with the more sophisticated people subject to foreign influence The Khmer leaders therefore feared the cities would become centers of resistance

This was also the reason that families were broken up leaving individuals with no ties that could be used to organize opposition The Khmers were suspicious of anyone with an education, anyone who might be susceptible to alien ideas In some areas anyone who could read and write was killed

All schools have also been closed down, presumably until the Khmer Rouge can train enough trusted teachers to re-educate the nation The only education now permitted is political indoctrination a fanatic form of foreign hating chauvinistic Marxism

The harsh dogmatic men who now rule Cambodia understand above all that the best way to control the masses is first to cow them and then to indoctrinate them The Khmers moved swiftly therefore to stamp out the slightest resistance real or imagined

The former Cambodian army was quickly disbanded and its officers largely eliminated Some soldiers were roped together and clubbed to death The few who escaped to tell about it showed rope burns on the arms

Others were corraled in work camps where they were worked mercilessly for long hours and subjected to additional hours of hysterical indoctrination Discipline in these camps is extremely harsh with beatings and killings for the slightest misdeeds

Lots of Loony Legalities

Forty years ago Dick Hyman paused to listen to a judge in Jasper Ala The judge said that since the Alabama husband is accountable for his wife's misbehavior he has the legal right to chastise her with a stick no larger than the thumb

Hyman was a New York reporter He returned to the Big Apple determined to devote his life to locating nutty laws He has written newspaper columns magazine articles and books about loony legalities He has just published 600 of the weirdest in a book called The Trenton Pickle Ordinance and Other Bonehead Legislation Have a few samples and bear in mind these are ordinances

In Alaska it's against the law to look at a moose from an airplane It's against the law in Florida to molest an alligator In Indiana, a driver can be given a breath test against his will because the legislature reasons that after the breath leaves the body it ceases to be the property of the person from whom it came '

It is against the law for a baby sitter in Altoona Pa to clean out an employer's refrigerator. You may not back a car in Glendale Calif You can be fined in Georgia for slapping a man on the back

Barbers in Waterloo Ia , are forbidden by law to eat onions between 7 a m and 7 p m In Baton Rouge La a bill has been introduced fixing a 25-cent ceiling on haircuts for bald men

Kentucky state law is blunt on this question Every citizen must take a bath at least once a year If you steal a cake of soap in Mojave County Ariz , a policeman will stand by as you wash yourself with the soap until it is used up

No one in Lawrence, Kans , is permitted to walk the streets with bees in his hat Fairbanks, Alaska, forbids anyone from disturbing a grizzly bear to take its picture It's a violation of the city code for a tenant in Rumford, Me , to bite his landlord

In Utah, birds have the right of way on highways Virginia has a campaign statute 'To prohibit corrupt practices or bribery by any person other than candidates In Texas, women who adorn calendars in saloons must be decently clad

Sterling Colo , warns that it is a violation of law to permit your cat to run loose without a tail light A rooster who wants to crow in Kenilworth, Ill , must first step back 800 paces from any residence

In Boston it is forbidden to put tomatoes in clam chowder Colorado statutes proclaim No maternity hospital shall receive an infant without its mother, except in cases of emergency " It is against the law in Seattle to carry a concealed weapon over six feet long

Iowa passed a law many years ago stating that women are not allowed to wear corsets The men of the state were appointed corset inspectors, and were permitted to poke strange ladies in the ribs No woman in Kentucky is permitted to marry the same man four times Girls in Whitesville, Del , are forbidden to propose marriage in leap year In Michigan if a man's wife leaves him, he may follow her down the street removing articles of her clothing one by one - they are his property You are subject to a fine in Hammond Ind , for missing a spittoon from any angle In Monroe, Utah, couples who dance must make certain that there is plenty of light between their bodies You cannot call a doctor in Ohio a horse doctor even if he is a horse doctor A dentist who yanks the wrong tooth in South Foster, R I , must submit to having a wrong tooth extracted from his mouth In Atlanta window dressers must, under law draw the store shades during the robing and disrobing of their mannequins

It is legal for a cop in Paulding, O , to bite a dog to quiet him You cannot drink from public drinking fountains in Garden City, Kans In parts of Maine it is illegal to tickle a girl under the chin with a leather duster

Frogs are prohibited by law from croaking in Memphis after 11 p m No one is allowed to plant vegetables in a California cemetery A woman of Owensboro, Ky , is forbidden to purchase a hat unless her husband tries it on first

In the same state it is "contributory negligence' for any person to walk behind a mule without speaking to the animal first

It's a Bad Year for Prophets

It makes you wonder. We've had all sorts of political prophets who have invoked all sorts of polls to sustain their logic. The advocates of the "southern strategy" have predicted a continuing string of Republican presidential victories, the theory being that conservative southerners would continue to desert the Democrats who were divided on the "Wallace factor."

But the successes of Jimmy Carter in his own southern territory have knocked that particular theory in the head: Jimmy garnered both black and white Democratic votes in Florida and North Carolina, and he has done well in Dixie caucuses elsewhere. Clearly he would hold the South in a national election.

On the national scene, the prophets may be in for a bigger beating. This, supposedly, is a conservative year. All the important primary candidates save Udall have been making some gestures to the Right. But now we are confronted with the Hubert Horatio Humphrey phenomenon.

Carter's "ethnic purity" slip, while it has been vastly overplayed by hypocrites who really believe with him that the Federal government has no business in using force to break up homogeneous communities, has hurt the previously unflappable Jimmy's front-runner status. Udall can't quite make it even with some of the liberals. Henry Jackson, the most intelligent of the Democratic contenders, has come on too strongly about Trident submarines and telling Brezhnev what to do about emigration from Russia to satisfy the big "let's stay at home" element in his party.

So now lots of Democrats are saying that "Hubert is our best, and it is silly not to go with our best."

We are, then, faced with the probability that none other than Hubert the Hump will carry flag for the Democrats in November. Humphrey is a complete throwback to the 1930s, when the Federal government was trusted to solve every problem and when popular writers like Stuart Chase and George Soule were extolling the "planned society."

I have been handcuffed in trying to write about Humphrey simply because I have a horror of repeating myself. It was way back in 1960 that I wrote a campaign profile of Humphrey for National Review in which I lamented that Hubert had only one idea, and that was to throw money at a problem in accordance with a collectivist plan. I brought the profile up to date in 1964 when Humphrey was Lyndon Johnson's chosen running mate. So there is nothing more, substantively, to be said: Hubert hasn't changed a bit in all these years.

The crazy thing about it is that he is likely to be our next President. His platform would be Rexford Tugwell's program for 1936 and 1940. But instead of going by the name of Tugwellism, it would exalt the names of Humphrey and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins of California, who are responsible for the so-called Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1976.

Under the terms of this bill (which has, incidentally, been endorsed by Jimmy Carter, the supposed enemy of Washington bureaucratic control), the Federal government would shovel out money until the unemployment rats had been cut to three per cent.

There would be new public service jobs (adding to the already bloated government payroll), a special work and apprentice service for 18-year-olds, and a continuation of a high minimum wage even for those with nothing much to contribute to the gross national product.

Since the so-called Phillips curve, which once "proved" a correlation between inflation and increased private employment, has been brought into complete disrepute in England, the whole Humphrey-Hawkins program lacks any justification. It would be wildly inflationary without causing any healthy new investment in the private sector.

If Humphrey is nominated, with Carter as his providential vice presidential running mate, he could beat a Republican relying on Dixie. In which case our prophets of a conservative victory in 1976 might well turn to Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" for an evaluation of their profession. Said Mark Twain's Yankee: "A prophet doesn't have to have any brains... It is the restfulest vocation there is. When the spirit of prophecy comes upon you, you... unship your jaw and leave it alone; it will work itself: The result is prophecy."

Understand, I am making no predictions about the 1976 outcome. I am a Connecticut Yankee too.

McHugh's Hat In Ring Again

BINGHAMTON — It will be the second time around the congressional campaign trail for Rep Matthew McHugh, D-27th Dist., who said today he is running for re-election "with few illusions."

In formally announcing his candidacy for his seat in the House of Represenatives, McHugh said he delayed it for as long as possible because he "wanted to remain a legislator — and not a candidate — for as long as possible.

"Too often for members of the House, the end of one campaign is the signal for the next one to begin. Given the two-year term of office, perhaps this is inevitable," he said. "Still this promises to be an exhausting political year for all of us, candidates and citizens alike, and the later the political barnstorming the better."

McHugh , after 16 months in office believes he has a deeper appreciation now for the seriousness and complexity of problems facing the country and the limited capacity of any one representative to dramatically deal with them. In announcing his candidacy, he said he therefore wants to avoid inflated assessments and overblown promises and asked to be judge only on his record of service.

In '1876', Gore Vidal Describes Life in Barrytown

By JIM HAVILAND

STONE RIDGE — The Hudson Valley figures prominently in the latest best seller "1876" written by Gore Vidal, who learned about the region first hand while maintaining a mansion beside the Hudson River at Barrytown for more than 20 years.

Vidal, who first moved to the area in 1950, describes his former river estate, "Edgewater," in "1876" and also gives a glimpse of what life was like for the wealthy a hundred years ago at "Ferncliff," the ancestral Astor estate at Rhinecliff.

Coming across strongly in the book is an aversion the author must have developed to passing trains while residing near the Penn Central tracks paralleling the river's east shore.

While living at Barrytonw, Vidal found time in 1960 to run as a Democrat for Congress -- and lose. This experience whetted his appetite for politics clearly indicated in "1876" in his description of events in the bitter presidential election contest between Samuel J. Tilden, the New York governor; and Rutherford B. Hayes, the Ohio governor.

Through the years, including those spent in the Hudson Valley, Vidal has developed a sharp and active tongue. These strong feeling come across vibrantly in his latest book.

A Hudson Valley native, the 50-year-old Vidal was born in the Cadet Hospital at West Point. His father, Eugene L. Vidal, was the aviation expert in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's first cabinet who later founded two airlines — TWA and Northeast. His maternal grandfather was Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma.

Vidal's family background enabled him to mix freely with the wealthy, including Astor family members, and the famous, including the late President John F. Kennedy. These relationships have nurtured insights he presents in "1876."

In his book, Vidal vividly describes his former Barrytown home, "Edgewater," although not mentioning it by name.

The novel's main character, Charles Schermerhorn Schuyler, bearing an uncanny resemblence to Vidal, drives north by carriage to "Edgewater" while visiting at "Ferncliff," the Astor's Rhinecliff estate. In "1876" Vidal's residence only is characterized as "a charming estate owned by some people whose name I never learned."

The author describes this mansion as a fine example of the Greek style. "Six tall columns form a portico that overlooks a sweep of lawn ending in willow trees at the Hudson River," he writes of his former home. " The house is beautifully proportioned, with a north wing consisting of a single octagonal room two storeys high and lit by a glass cupola that must make it unpleasantly hot in the summer and impossible to heat in the winter." Mrs. Astor was the tone who inspired the term, "the 400", representing the number of acceptable socialites who could fit into her private New York ballroom.

Previously in the book while being introduced to Mrs. Astor at her Fifth Avenue mansion, Schuyler notices that her "dead black hair is not entirely her own." Vidal describes this not young woman as being "decorated with chains of diamonds and pearl moonbursts and a stomacher of emeralds that the Great Mogul himself might envy."

In describing the trip up the Hudson by private railway coach, the novelist reports "the hauntingly beautiful Hudson River was ever in our view while we contentedly dined." By the time lunch was "comfortably digested," the car was detached from the train at the Rhinecliff depot.

"Waiting for us on the sideing were Ward McAllister were Ward McAllister (Mrs. AStor's social arbitrator) and a pair of grooms from the Astor household," Vidal reports. "In frock coat and silk hat, McAllister looked remarkably out of place in that green rustic setting."

Schuyler and the others in his party are driven by carriage from the station to the Astor house. They traveled along a charming country lane "lined with stone houses from our Dutch Dutch period as well as with the frame houses of our English successors."

The novelist tells of first seeing Ferncliff at "the end of a driveway lined with splendid elm trees." He describes the house as "a large new mansion of wood." Charlie Schuyler is shocked over seeing a mere wood mansion and reports "the effect is very odd."

This main house at Ferncliff was demolished in 1945 when Vincent Astor and his second wife, the former Mary Benedict Cushing, moved into the "Sports Palace." This imposing Renaissance structure, originally built in 1903 by the famous architect Stanford White, was remodeled into living quarters.

Several years after Vincent Astor's death, the ancestral Astor estate was given to the Roman Catholic Church and now contains a nursing home.

In the book, Vidal reports that the rooms in the original Ferncliff mansion offered a splendid vista through the trees of the " bright river far below, not to mention the railroad."

The novelist evidentally was annoyed by passing trains while at his own "Edgewater" and vividly describes what he imagines was an even greater nuisance back in 1876 when there were many more of these toot toots belching unpleasant clouds of smoke and cinders.

"The sound of the trains carries eerily well," Vidal writes, " and all the magnates who have built houses along this high cliff are forced to listen to the trains just the way the humble folk who life beneath the Sixth Avenue Elevated Railway are deafened at regular intervals all through the day."

The author explains that the trains continue through the night and seem to blow their whistles just while passing beneath Ferncliff. He tells how everyone stopped speaking in the mansion when one train clattered by below "causing the crystals in the chandeliers to chatter."

The choo-choos passed much closer to Vidal's own home on a level with the tracks and he seems even more bitter when describing these incursions.

While Charlie Schuyler is talking to someone at this location, he is interrupted by "a noise rather like an explosion close by, then a deafening shrill whistle." Looking up, according to Vidal, Schuyler saw " one of Commodore Vanderbilt's monsters: some thirty freight cars jerked and rattled past as smoke and burning cinders erupted from the locomotive, making a huge cloud that obscured half the sky."

The novelist explains that during a visitation by the passing train at "Edgewater" even the native did not talk. "We stood mute, motionless, as ashes fell about us like a dark rain." Schuyler observed.

The constant annoyance of the trains in the 1950's and 1960's may have been what drove Vidal from the Hudson's shores several years ago. Now he spends a good deal of his time eight or nine months a year at his Italian villa at Ravello where life far away from the tracks presumably is much quieter.

"Edgewater," the former Barrytown estate of Gore Vidal, offers breath-taking beauty of the Hudson River which surrounds it on three sides. The ugly feature is provided by the noisy trains hurrying close by on tracks just behind the mansion.

Author Gore Vidal in his book describes his former home as haveing "a north wing consisting of a single octagonal room two storeys high and lit by a glass cupola that must make it unpleasantly hot in the summer and impossible to heat in the winter."

Author Gore Vidal passed through this gate many times in the more than 20 yeasr he owned this Barrytown estate. In the book "1876" he describes it as a fine example of the Greek style.

Vintner Mark Miller on TV

MARLBORO —The small winemakers in the Hudson Valley know what they want. Contending the industry here is 15 years behind California, they want New York State's law liberalized.

One thing they'd like is a farm winery license that would allow a farmer to make wine from his own grapes up to 50,000 gallons.

Any such modification of the law already has the approval of Gov. Hugh Carey and the Farm Bureau. Now the little old winemakers are getting a push from a major television network.

How smaller vintners are pressing for changes in the law and why will be the subject of a TV news feature this Sunday, April 25 on ABC's Channel 7 between 6 and 7 p.m.

Ostomy Meeting

KINGSTON — "The Role of the Enterostomal Therapist to the Ostomy Visitor" will be the subject of a talk Sunday, April 25, at 2:30 p.m. at Benedictine Hospital's Senior Residence Auditorium.

The meeting is being sponsored by Mid-Hudson Ostomy Chapter for all persons who have had colostony, ileostomy or urostomy surgery.

Dear Abby

Pal Pants With Baited Breath

DEAR ABBY: Buddy, a guy I work with, likes to fish and so do I, so last weekend he and I went on a fishing trip. When we came home and Buddy met my wife for the first time, he looked her up and down, and then he turned to me and said, "Hey, man, you must be nuts to leave a beautiful gal like that alone for the weekend."

Do you think I was?—

LIKES TO FISH

DEAR LIKES: I don't know about THAT weekend, but the next time you go fishing, be sure to take Buddy with you.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I married a widow. I owned a home, but it was too large for two people, so I sold it and moved into hers. She had a mortgage on it, which I paid off, then I bought her home from her and put it in both our names.

The problem is her son. He has been in a lot of trouble with the law. (Burglaries.) Right now he's on probation.

He has always carried a key to his mother's house, which means he can come and go as he pleases, whether we're home or not.

I have missed a pair of expensive binoculars, a portable TV and a very good camera. I believe this young man took them and sold them. His mother thinks so, too, and she has asked him for the key. He gives her one excuse after another and still has the key.

How can we get the key back without making an ugly scene? —CHICAGOAN

DEAR CHICAGOAN: Forget the key. Change the locks.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a mature, 15-year-old girl, and I can't wait until my next birthday so I can quit school and leave home.

My mother is always on my back about something. Nothing I do ever pleases her. She has never trusted me, even when I had nothing to hide. She makes me feel so low and cheap. I can't wait to get away from this house and HER.

There is this dude I really dig. He's 22 and being divorced. I'm not supposed to be seeing him, but I see him anyway. He says when I turn 16 I'll be able to do what I please, then he'll take me on the road with him. He's a trucker and makes good money.

It wouldn't be a shacking-up deal, Abby. He wants to MARRY me as soon as his divorce comes through. He's got two kids, but his wife keeps them, and she doesn't hassle him because he's always been on time with the support checks.

I love this dude, and the only thing I can say against him is that he gets awfully mean when he drinks. But he's not an alcoholic, and he never drinks on the job.

Help me decide what to do. Anything would be better than living here.—WANTS TO RUN

DEAR WANTS: Of all the reasons to marry, yours is the poorest. Please get some counseling, dear. Your school has a service for troubled students. And a talk with a clergyman would help. But the word from here is to stay home and get your head together.

Middle Age is Ten Years Hence

"Hey Mom," said my son the other afternoon. "Why don't you talk to this guy at the door?"

"What does he want?"

"He's selling firewood."

"Winter's over. We don't want any."

He hesitated. "Just talk to him. He's so old and he looks sorta shabby and I think he needs the money."

On the way to the door, I got a mental picture of Willy Loman from "Death of a Salesman," with red-rimmed watery eyes, graying hair, pants in need of pressing and shoes with the heels run down.

I opened the door. There stood a guy about 28 years old in faded jeans and a $40 McGregor windbreaker. he was checking his digital watch for the time. His 1975 Ford truck stood in the driveway.

"What's with the old and shabby number?" I said later to my son. "That guy couldn't have been more than 28 or 29 years old."

"That's middle age," he said.

The dictionary lists middle age as somewhere between youth and old age. I'd pinpoint it somewhere between birth and death. It fluctuates depending on your own age.

When I was 17 and a senior in high school I had a teacher who was seven years older than I. At 24, he was middle-aged and more's the pity, he didn't know anything. I hung around after class because I felt sorry for him.

When he was 31, I was 24. My husband and I saw him at a dance one night and he looked bored. Why shouldn't he have looked bored? His life was over. His body was gone. He had advanced as far professionally as he was going to go. And I was sure he never kissed his wife. I mean, what for?

When he was 38, he was 10 years older than I and looked it. He wore the coat sweaters and was showing some signs of gray. Sometimes though, when he hallucinated, he made some pretty good sense.

Years later, when he was 45, he was 13 years older than I and I had to marvel at how well he was holding up. He told me he and his wife were doing some traveling and he still remembered my name.

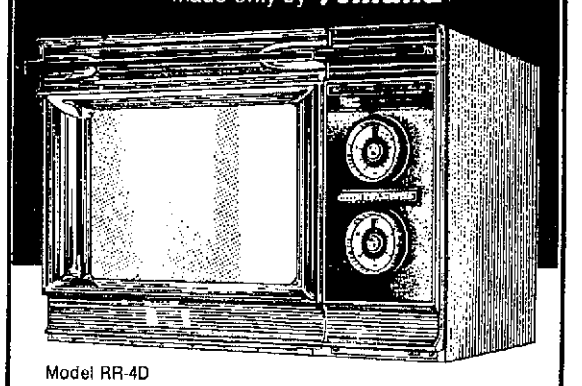

I saw my old teacher the other day. I figured out he was 56 years old now.

"My goodness," he said, "that would make you 49 and middle-aged, wouldn't it?" The poor devil is so squirrely. I'll never understand why they let these old, confused people climb behind the wheel of a car. Everyone knows middle age is 10 years from wherever you are and the way I'm going, I may never get there.

Acting Chairman

UCCAC Elects Gilday to Post

KINGSTON—Andrew J. Gilday Jr., a city attorney, has been elected acting chairman of the board of directors of the Ulster County Community Action Committee Inc.

Meeting in special session Tuesday night at the county office building, UCCAC came away with 20 duly constituted members.Seven of them had been members of the former board of directors which had split over the firing of executive director David Joseph and which had been under fire itself over recent revelations concer concerning financial questions concerning both David and former board president James Billups.

Gilday, speaking to the Freeman following the elections, indicated they were temporary—permanent elections will be held in June—but said nonetheless that a personnel committee to be named by h im next week would begin probing the various allegations surrounding the operation of the almost $500,000 a year poverty program.

Board members were nominated and elected from various sectors of the community. The county legislature nominated Henry Paul Jr. (an and Legislator Melvin Mones (both incumbents) al along with Legislators Alice Tipp and Larry Kitheart. John Logan is the fifth county representative to the board.

Gilday is an appointee of Mayor Francis R. Koenig. The Common Council of the city also has an appointee but it has not been filled; it is the only vacancy on the board.

Representatives from the "private sector" will include Lawrence Nobles from the NAACP, Connie Weis-Goffredi from the YWCA, Katie Gordon from PFI, an agency of the state labor department, Julius Sippen from the ILGWU, Ms. Marty Carney from Headstart, Donald J. Hanzel from IBM and Richard B. Mathews from the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce.

Area representatives will include Rosemary Melindez from Wawarsing and Sandra Wright. Mrs. Melindez is an incumbent. Rondout sends incumbents Lester Hatcher and Annie Jackson to the board while Saugerties returns Lucille Maggiolo. Carole Johnson is the representative from the New Paltz area and Frank Robinson, an incumbent, will represent Rosendale.

Fire Workshop

More than 250 Ulster County fire and law enforcement officials have registered for a workshop on "line officers" responsibilities in arson investigation" to be held April 24 at Ulster Community College. Instructor will be Harold Glass, former special agent from the Fraud and Arson Division of the National Board of Fire Underwriters' who will concentrate on fraud fires and the preservation of evidence. Preparing the program are (l-r): Al Morelli, president of the Ulster County Magistrates Association; Wesley Clark, Ulster County Fire Coordinator; and Professor Robert A. Kurland, chairman of the Department of Public Service at UCCC.

Dock Festival Plans

KINGSTON — Now that Kingston's Bicentennial Commission knows definitely that the New York State Bicentennial Barge will dock in Kingston in the Rondout Creek, June 25-27, plans are being made for a shoreside festival.

Kingston is one of 32 stops along the barge route, according to Edward Levine, commission chairman.

Raymond L. Caddy and Edward Arace, co-chairmen of the festival committee plan stage attractions, exhibits, special events and activities utilizing the theme, "Man is a Mosaic."

A welcoming ceremony has been scheduled for Friday, June 25 with a stage attraction planned by Roger Scholl, who is in charge of entertainment. Saturday ethnic dances and music will be provided and an evening performance will be given by Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, the Women's Barbershop group and the Steuben Society. Additional performing groups are being sought with particular emphasis on ethnic music and dancing.

The committee will construct 15 to 20 booths for sale of refreshments, crafts and merchandise as well as exhibits.

"The booths will not be commercial or political, nor will they be for hard-core causes," Caddy emphasizsd. "Balloons are not in keeping with the theme, nor are trinkets, buttons, and animals on sticks. Handcrafted items, particularly ethnic crafts, will be given preference and hopefully combined with information or demonstration, he said.

In spite of reports that some communities along the barge route are considering pulling out because of inadequacy of state funding, Kingston is planning with a great deal of voluntary cooperation to make the festival self-supporting, Levine said. Accordingly, there will be a charge for booth space: $300 for refreshment booths and $150 for merchandise booths. The committee suggests non-profit groups may be able to secure sponsorships.

State Reports On fees

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Department of Motor Vehicles has announced that the state collected $1.3 million from the registration of snowmobiles and motorboats in 1975.

A total of 149,401 snowmobiles were registered and there were 337,701 motorboats registered in the department's computer file, a DMV statement said.

Because motorboat registrations are good for three years, only 125,631 new registrations were recorded last year.

McGlothen Suspended

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Lynn McGlothen, who said he deliberately struck two New York Met batters in a beanball battle Tuesday night, has been fined $300 and suspended for five days by National League President Chub Feeney.

"I expected to be fined, but not suspended," McGlothen said. "I think they're trying to make an example of me."

The suspension began Thursday and means McGlothen will miss his next scheduled start Sunday at San Diego.

Stung by three two-run homers in the first two innings of the 8-0 loss to the Mets, McGlothen struck Met center fielder Del Unser in the elbow in the third inning. Unser had hit one of the homers and also had won Monday's series opener with a homer in the 17th inning.

When McGlothen led off the bottom of the third, New York starter Jon Matlack threw close to the St. Louis pitcher, bringing a warning and the accompanying $50 fine from plate umpire Bruce Froemming.

Matlack led off the fourth and McGlothen threw three close pitches. He hit the Mets' lefthander in the back with a fourth pitch, touching off a fracas in which both dugouts came charging onto the field.

Froemming ejected McGlothen and Red Schoendienst because the Cardinal manager had been warned against continuing the feud. Mets shortstop Bud Harrelson also was ejected because Froemming said he used profanity in protesting Matlack's fine.

McGlothen and Matlack both admitted they threw at the batters.

"I threw that baseball to hit Unser. Let me make that perfectly clear," McGlothen said after the game.

Matlack said, "The man hit my hitter and he's going down. If I didn't get him, I'd get the next man."

New York General Manager Joe McDonald sent a letter to Feeney protesting Froemming's handling of the situation.

"I didn't complain about McGlothen as much as I complained about how Bruce Froemming handled it," McDonald said. "He let four pitches go by that either hit or nearly hit someone before ejecting anyone. That's too long to wait."

Froemming said of the complaint, "The Mets asked me why I didn't do something about it, like throw McGlothen out right away. But I had to go according to the book the regulations put together by the general managers."

Reggie Wants Guarantee

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Slugger Reggie Jackson says he's looking forward to playing for the Baltimore Orioles and would even consider playing without a contract.

But he said he needs some kind of guarantee that he'll be "taken care of" if he's injured.

"I look forward to playing for the Baltimore Orioles. I feel nothing but plus, plus, plus, but what happens if old Reggie gets a torn up leg and can't play. I can't sell popcorn for that kind of money."

If he began playing baseball without some kind of agreement or contract, Jackson said, "I'd also be playing with no guarantee I'd get anything if I broke a leg."

Jackson, ho has not signed with the Orioles since being traded to the club by Oakland, called radio station WBAL in Baltimore, which broadcast an interview Thursday. He denied giving the club the ultimatum that if he weren't signed in two days he would sit out the season and sign with a West Coast club next year.

He told WBAL sports director Ted Patterson Thursday, "That's not true, and that's one of the reasons I called you."

The Baltimore Evening Sun had reported that Jackson had given the club an ultimatum.

Jackson did say, however, that he had told the club it "would be difficult to start in May."

A spokesman for the Orioles also said Thursday that several telephone conversations were being held between Jackson, his agent, Gary Walker, and Oriole General Manager Hank Peters.

"I think something may happen soon," the spokesman said.

"I anticipate signing a long contract ... but we gotta have something for me to go out and take a chance of breaking a leg," Jackson said.

He also denied reports that is he asking for a $3 million five year contract.

"That is so erroneous, it was so stupid, I didn't want to comment on it," he said. "They don't talk about what Frank Sinatra makes. They don't talk about what the Jackson Five gets for an appearance. Everybody should keep that under their hats."

Commenting on the Orioles' admitted last resort of trading him to another team, Jackson said, "We could deal me off, which doesn't make sense."

Adams Feels the Pressure

The Chicago Cubs' Mike Adams feels the pressure "even when I bat in the second inning."

So he wasn't in an unfamiliar role when he came to bat for the Cubs with two out in the 11th inning, runners on second and third base and the score 4-4 Thursday with the Montreal Expos.

Adams delivered a single to right field on pitcher Dale Murray's first throw to him, and it gave the Cubs a 5-4 decision to end a five-game losing streak and furnish a split of two games completed Thursday. Montreal won a 12-6 victory in the completion of a game suspended after six innings because of darkness Wednesday.

Tim Foli homered during the three inning completion to give him the cycle for the game, the first time by a Montreal player and the 71st in National League history. He had a single, double and triple in the same game Wednesday.

Thursday the Cubs got improved pitching with Rick Reuschel lasting seven innings, though he gave up all four Montreal runs, three of them on a bases loaded double by rival pitcher Clay Kirby, who couldn't stay on the mound to finish the second inning.

Bill Madlock and Jerry Morales hit home runs on consecutive pitches by Fred Scherman to tie the game in the fifth, and neither team could score again until Morales doubled with one out in the 11th, Andy Thornton was walked intentionally, and both advanced on Manny Trillo's infield out before Adams hit.

"I was just trying to hit the ball wherever I could," Adams said. "If you're not playing regularly, you can't afford to pick balls to hit. You've got to start swinging."

"I like Adams," Cubs manager Jim Marshall said. "He played good ball for us all spring. I gave the other man a choice. He could have walked Adams and pitched to George Mitterwald, and he decided to pitch to Adams."

The Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 7-2 in the only other National League game and the Kansas City Royals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, in the only American League game.

Dodgers 7 Astros 2

Joe Ferguson drove in two runs with his first homer of the season and Mike Marshall earned his third save for the Dodgers. Marshall pitched out of a bases-filled, none-out jam in the seventh inning, saving the win for Doug Rau. Dusty Baker delivered a two-run single in the fifth inning when the Dodgers took a 6-0 lead.

Royals 2 Brewers 1

Don Money's error on George Brett's hard-hit grounder enabled Jim Wohlford to score Kansas City's winning run in the eighth inning. Doug Bird took over for Al Fitzmorris in the seventh inning and received credit for the victory. Jim Colborn suffered his first loss against one triumph for the Brewers.

Islanders Can Have Sunday Off

Billy Smith is glad he won't have to play Sunday but Darryl Sittler brought his lucky necktie, Red Kelly his pyramids and Butch Goring his overtime stick so they'd all be able to do just that.

Smith backstopped his fourth straight triumph in the Islander nets Thursday night as New York won 3-2 to take its best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarterfinal series from the Buffalo Sabres, the 1975 losing Cup finalists, four games to two.

A loss would have meant a seventh game in Buffalo Sunday and, said Smith, likely elimination for the Islanders.

"I'm glad it's over," he sighed in relief. "We never would have been able to go back to Buffalo and win there. That would have been unreal."

The win made Smith's fear academic. Jude Drouin, Eddie Westfall and Clark Gillies tallied for the Islanders while Gil Perreault and Jerry Korab scored for Buffalo, which was limited to 17 shots on goal by the tight-checking Islander defense.

Toronto, on the other hand, down three games to two in its series with defending Cup champion Philadelphia, needed a win to stay alive and a chance to play Sunday.

The Maple Leafs got that opportunity when Sittler, who earlier this year scored six goals in one game to tie a regular season record, tallied five times to tie a playoff mark as Toronto outscored the Flyers 8-5 in another penalty-filled contest to even the series at three games apiece.

"I felt lucky tonight and the puck was going in for me," the 25-year old Leafs' captain said. "But we outhustled them and that was the key factor."

Sittler laughingly noted he wore his lucky necktie to the game, "but who's to say if it all helps?"

He scored once each in the first and third periods and notched three goals in the middle session en route to matching Maurice Richard, who got his five goals back in 1944—against Toronto. Sittler added an assist to tie Dickie Moore and Phil Esposito for the most points in one contest, six.

Kelly, the Leafs' coach, said "a lot of hustle" was a big factor in the victory but so was "pyramid power." The parttime mystic had plastic pyramids strung beneath the Leafs' bench, in the dressing room and high atop Maple Leaf Gardens to transmit "a force much like energy" into his players.

During one of the brawls that marred the Leafs-Flyers game Thursday night, NHL president Clarence Campbell and refereein-chief Scott Morrison (R) stand up to get a better look. Involved in fracas are Dave Schultz and Dave Williams (L), Bob Kelly (9) and Dave Dunn (4), Tom Bladon (3) and Borje Salming (21). Campbell had off-ice problems Thursday. He and four other prominent Canadian businessmen were released on $100,000 bond each pending a second court appearance June 21 on two charges of conspiring to defraud the federal government. (UPI)

He hinted he'll have his good luck charms for Sunday's game in Philadelphia, where the Leafs have not won since December, 1971.

"On Sunday, we'll lay everything we have on the Flyers. Maybe you can herald it as the battle between Kate Smith and pyramid power," he said straightfaced.

The teams set a playoff record of 466 penalty minutes for a series when they amassed an additional 140 minutes Thursday, breaking the mark held by the Flyers and Boston in the 1974 finals of 390 minutes.

And again, police are considering laying assault charges as a result of an incident during the game. The Flyers' Dave Schultz had an altercation with a fan as he was making his way to the dressing room and an investigation will be made to determine whether the unnamed fan should be charged with assault.

At Los Angeles Goring, a 5-foot-9, 170-pounder who scored 33 goals during the regular season, notched his second overtime tally of the series — and his second career Cup goal — to give the Kings a 4-3 victory over Boston and square their series at three wins each.

Goring had won the series' second game only 27 seconds into the extra session. This time he took a little longer — 18:28 of overtime before banking in a 35-footer off the goalpost.

Tommy Williams opened the scoring for the Kings in the second period but Bobby Schmautz, Darryl Edestrand and Gregg Sheppard replied for the Bruins in the same period to give Boston a 3-1 lead. Mike Corrigan then scored twice in the final period, the second time only 2:12 before the end of regulation time.

The decisive seventh game, in Boston, is also scheduled for Sunday night.

There were no games in the World Hockey Association playoffs, but there is action in all three best-of-seven series tonight. Calgary opens its series at Winnipeg, New England hosts Indianapolis with a 2-1 lead and Houston, up 1-0, entertains San Diego.

Not a Good Day for NBA Playoff Favorites

All things considered, it wasn't the best of days for the National Basketball Association playoff favorites.

For the defending NBA champion Golden State Warriors, Thursday night brought a rather rude 123-111 defeat on their home court by the underdog Detroit Pistons. The victory, which ended a 14-game west coast losing streak for the Pistons, squared the semifinal series with Golden State at one game apiece.

Even before the seemingly endless NBA playoffs began, most observers felt it would ultimately be the Warriors and the Boston Celtics battling it out in the finals —and that the Celtics would go as far as John Havlicek could carry them.

But the Celtics, who didn't play Thursday, may have sustained an even greater loss than the Warriors when it was learned that the 36-year old Havlicek had suffered a serious leg muscle injury in their physical 107-98 victory over the Buffalo Braves Tuesday night. Although the win gave Boston a 1-0 lead in the series, with Havlicek out, the Celtics are hurting too.

"John went home all right, then woke up this morning and couldn't put his leg on the floor," said Celtics spokesman Howie McHugh. "He may play Sunday but we're not optimistic."

Havlicek, who scored 22 points in the opening game, suffered torn fascia tissue in the arch of his left foot during the game, but did not know it until the next morning. The injury was being treated with ice and medication. "Then it's a question of how well he can run on it," McHugh added.

Meanwhile, Curtis Rowe and Bob Lanier were doing their bit to ruin the Warriors' night by combining for 64 points in spearheading the Detroit victory. Rowe, who averaged 16 points during the regular season, surpassed that with a 17-point first quarter and wound up with 33.

The Warriors, paced by Rick Barry and Phil Smith, went ahead early in the second period, but a 9-0 Detroit outburst took control and paced the Pistons to a 70-66 halftime lead. Lanier, who failed to grab a rebound in the first half, finished with 31 points and eight rebounds. Barry and Smith led the Warriors with 27 and 21 points.

In the only other NBA game, Cleveland took a 3-2 lead in games over Washington by edging the Bullets 92-91. In the only American Basketball Association playoff game, Denver put away Kentucky 127-117.

Cavaliers 92, Bullets 91

Jimmy Cleamons tipped in a rebound shot at the buzzer as Cleveland pulled out the victory over Washington. A record NBA playoff crowd of 21,312 saw the Cavs take the lead at 11:35 of the third period and hold it until 1:12 when Elvin Hayes put the Bullets ahead with a three-point play. Dick Snyder led all Cleveland scorers with 26 points while Hayes topped the Bullets with 25.

Nuggets 127, Colonels 117

David Thompson scored 34 points and helped spark a 39point third quarter as Denver took a 3-2 lead in their ABA semifinal series with Kentucky. The game was decided in the third quarter when Denver, led by Thompson and Ralph Simpson, hit 16-of-22 shots. The Colonels, meanwhile, were hitting only 9-of-23. Simpson had 11 points and Thompson eight. High-point man for the Colonels, defending ABA champions, was Artis Gilmore with 26 points.

Putts Starting to Drop, Reasor Makes Early Move

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, having spent a pleasant morning enjoying one of spring's most perfect days, looked out upon the greenery of Lakewood Country Club Thursday and made his forecast.

"If someone doesn't break the course record before the day is over I'll be very surprised," said golf's Mr. Big. "The day is made for it."

The big round Nicklaus was expecting finally came late on the opening day of the $175,000 New Orleans Open, but there was still a surprise because it was Mike Reasor who shot it.

Reasor's seven-under-par 65 was only one shot off the course record and it put the little known seven-year tour veteran two shots in front of two other non-winners Wally Armstrong and Monty Kaser and defending champion Billy Casper.

But lurking three shots behind at 68 were 11 other golfers, including Nicklaus, British Open champ Tom Watson, leading money winner Hubert Green and John Mahaffey.

The four-under group also included Frank Conner, Bobby Wadkins, Dick Lotz, Victor Regalado, Lee Elder, Lyn Lott and David Graham.

Although Reasor is far from a household name, he has played well the past two weeks at the Magnolia Classic and Tallahassee while the more prominent members of the tour have been at the Masters and the Tournament of Champions.

Reasor finished in the top 15 of both events, but he has won less than $5,000 this year.

"I don't know what's happening all of a sudden," said the 36-year-old native of Seattle. "Maybe I'm beginning to jell.

"I've actually had a chance to win lately. But you just don't know how little difference there is between shooting a 65 and a 75. When you start making some putts you can suddenly be three under instead of seven over."

And Reasor made his share of putts Thursday over the par-72 layout — using his putter only 28 times. He ran in three putts of 30 feet or more and made four birdies in a row on the back nine to rush to the lead.

Of all the names close behind Reasor, the most noticeable one is naturally Nicklaus. The Golden Bear appeared ready to cut loose with one of those tournament breaking rounds since he hit plenty of excellent shots Thursday.

"I did not end up with the kind of round I might have had considering the way I played," he said. "I gave away a few shots and some of the shots I hit out there were as good as I could hit it."

The normally soggy Lakewood course has been dried out so much by lack of rains this week that it was playing very short for the pros. On some holes where two and three irons have been used in the past, no more than a nine iron is called for.

That resulted in a barrage of sub-par rounds and it appeared a below-par score would be needed just to make the cut.

Among the other starters Thursday, Tournament of Champions winner Don January fired a 70 and former U.S. Open champ Gene Littler came in with a 69. No. 2 money winner Ben Crenshaw was forced to withdraw with the flu.

Unimpressive Win for Honest Pleasure

LEXINGTON, Ken. (UPI) — The Bluegrass Stakes never figured to be much of a race with Honest Pleasure vastly superior to the rest of the field, but it was still a tremendous battle Thursday at Keeneland.

The three-year-old speedster fought a battle of will with his own jockey, Braulio Baeza, who refused to allow Honest Pleasure to unleash his great early speed

The result was an unimpressive 1½ length victory over a nondescript field of seven and a leisurely 1:49 2-5 clocking for the 1⅛ mile route.

Trainer LeRoy Jolley and Baeza each claimed satisfaction with Honest Pleasure's ninth straight victory, which guaranteed the son of What A Pleasure-Pularia the favorite's role in the Kentucky Derby a week from Saturday.

"I was satisfied with his race," said the Panamian jockey. "The time? He won, what else do you want?"

"I was very satisfied with the race," said Jolley who also masterminded Foolish Pleasure's successful Kentucky Derby campaign last year. "He ran the last eighth of a mile in 12 seconds on a tiring track, that's good enough for me."

Unconcerned about the undistinguished field, Jolley and Baeza were interested more in whether or not they could get Honest Pleasure to contain his great speed in the race s early stages

Moving immediately to the lead, Honest Pleasure was under tight rein by Baeza and never buried the field as expected of the 1-18 favorite. The Keeneland record crowd of 20,901 made Honest Pleasure such an overwhelming choice Proud Birdie was second choice at 18-1 and the $2.20 win payoff created a minus pool of $41,876.20 with win betting only.

Jolley's concern about getting Honest Pleasure to relax in the early stages of the race stems from a probable Kentucky Derby challenge by Bold Forbes, another speed demon.

Afraid his colt may get involved in a blistering early pace in the Derby, Jolley had instructed Baeza to race Honest Pleasure as well as possible in the Bluegrass. Despite the tight restraint and his slow early fraction, Honest Pleasure held a five-length lead after six furlongs.

Second place finisher Certain Roman, a 148-1 shot not eligible for the Derby, closed to within a length in the stretch before Baeza's moderate urging brought Honest Pleasure the $73,027.50 winner's purse in the $112,350 Bluegrass.

The Bluegrass winner has won the Kentucky Derby in six of the last 13 years, dating back to Baeza's 1963 victory aboard Chateaugay.

Winning his ninth straight race and 10th in 12 starts, Honest Pleasure increased his career earnings to $606,800. The victory virtually assured a compact Derby field and Proud Birdie for one, will not tangle again with last year's two-year old champion colt in Louisville.

Although Jolley professed satisfaction with Honest Pleasure's performance, the time of 1.49 2-5 pales in comparison to his victories in the Flamingo (1:46 4-7) and the Florida Derby (1.47 4-5).

Jolley used the Bluegrass as an experiment and what its conclusion was will not be known until the 102nd running of the Kentucky Derby.

They're Chasing Edie Jo

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Qualifying leader Edie Jo Neal established herself as the woman to beat after 16 games of the $86,000 Women's World Invitational, but she isn't about to figure how to spend the $13,000 top prize at the moment

"As far as I'm concerned my 3,191 is just a total of pins knocked down at this point," said the Miami native.

Neal held a slim three-pin margin over runnerup Virginia Park of Whittier, Calif., going into today's match play. The field of 240 pros and amateurs was reduced to 80 survivors and will be pared to 24 after tonight's competition.

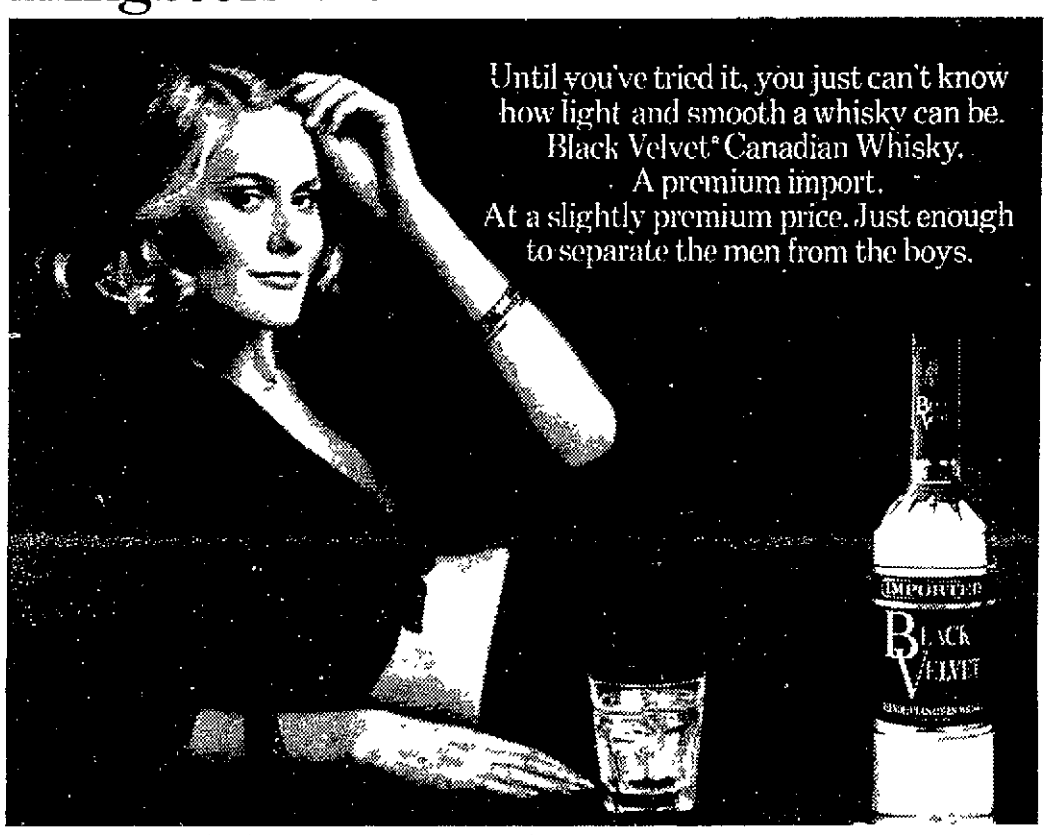

"The first tournament of the year is tough on everybody," Park said in explaining the low scores at the Brunswicksponsored event.

Lorrie Nichols, of Palatine, Ill., was third with 3,134 pins, 10 more than Shirley Garms, of Island Lake, Ill., the surprise leader at the 8-game stage

Nobody in the field is averaging 200 pins a game at the tough Perry Hall lanes where veterns Loa Boxburger, Pat Costello, and Rita Justice failed to qualify

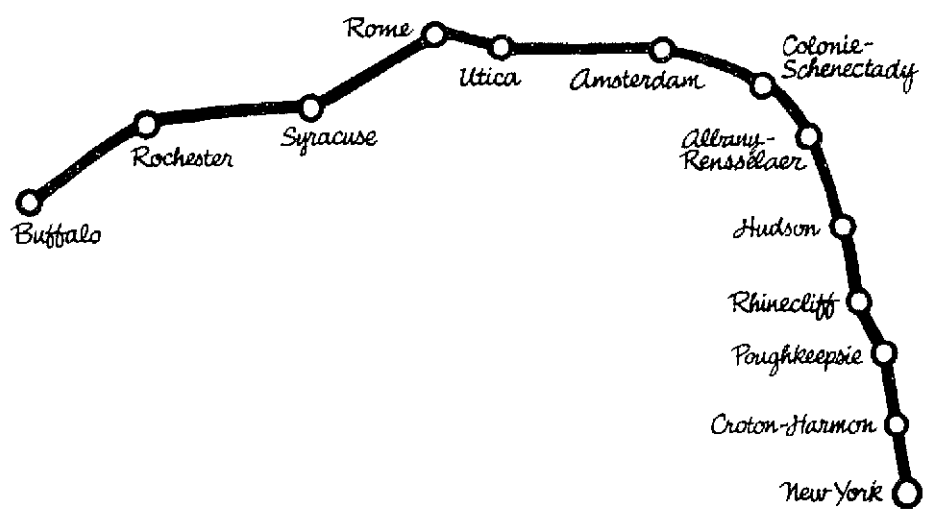

"In a tournament like this, spares are crucial," said Neal, who has never won a tour event but was Miami Bowler of the Year four times. She reeled off games of 257, 199, 200 and 170 Thursday night in a leap from 11th position to the pacesetting role

Sass Is Playoff Hero

KINGSTON - Mike Sass was the shining hero in Dolphin Inn's 92-91 squeaker over Wrixon Cabinets in the first game of the YMCA "B" Basketball League best-of-three playoffs.

Sass tied the score at 91-91 with 16 seconds remaining and later stepped to the foul line and converted on the second of two free throws to nail down the Dolphin's win - after the buzzer.

Wrixon's led 71-64 after three quarters but the Dolphin squad mounted a rally that led to the victory. After Sass' equalizers with 16 seconds to play, Wrixon's ten turned the ball over.

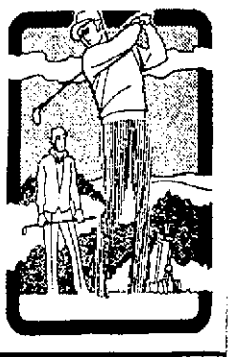

Ted Van Dyke fouled Sass as the buzzer. With the overflow crowd screaming, Sass stepped to the line, missed his first try, then hooped the winning free throw.

Dan Potter led Dolphin with 23 points. Sass finished with 21 and Hugh Schrowang turned in a fine all-around performance with 19 points.

Why should you buy a home now?
Because there are big benefits you can t enjoy until you do!
Like tax breaks. Remember — all the interest you pay is deductible — and so are property taxes. That alone could save you a pretty penny at tax time — ask any homeowner.
Appreciation is another plus. With the median price of a single family dwelling going up almost 10% a year, your home will be worth at least that much more every year. The reverse is also true. The longer you want to buy the more you'll have to pay.
Let your REALTOR® figure this for you. He'll give you the financial information you need, plus the best advice and fairest treatment if necessary. he can even help you find a source for mortgage funds — they're more plentiful than you think.
When you own your own home, you've got a lot going for you. Ask your REALTOR® for details

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 24

Your birthday today: Diversification comes naturally as activities and responsibilities expand. It's a year of on-the-job training or of refinement. New personal connections are gathered at such a fast rate it's hard to keep up with them; a few become emotionally important. Today's natives overindulge when young, prefer austerity when mature, go in for metaphysical disciplines and art.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You can take nothing for granted, delegate no chore of importance. Doing it yourself brings special benefits. Attend to health.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Share everything comfortably except decisions on what to do with your money. Leave that in a safe state, even if it means passing up a fabulous bargain.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Trivialities obscure the basic issues. Don't try to outspend competitors. Associates misunderstand your explanations. Mind your own affairs.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You've more energy, so it's a day to push professional or special assistance. Communicate without exaggeration or overelaborate wording.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Temptations range from an urge to gamble to a yen to explore hazardous places. Don't put aside inhibitions. Deal graciously with people who dislike you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There is more to the story than appears on the surface. Be sure not to miss the main point. Let those close to you sort matters out for themselves.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Other people think you're confused. Take time to gain perspective. Check out facts and figures so you have a better grasp of what's involved.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing goes as planned. Some matters are much smoother than hoped, others diverge in odd directions. Avoid speculative or high-risk actions. Slow down a bit.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Because it's your idea doesn't make it palatable to others. Find out what they'd do if you weren't on the scene. Let everybody cooperate.

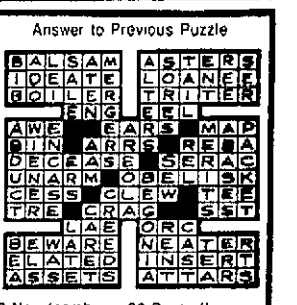

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): With a little enthusiastic showmanship you can attract support for personal projects. Make sure those you love hear the story again in reassuring terms.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Inanimate objects have no "rights" to remain as is, but if you want to change them, do so constructively. Hang on to what you've got, and don't sell it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Confidential proposals refer to situations that could get out of hand. Attend to home concerns first, giving minimum time to business.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

ASKED: (Q.) I am going out with a very nice, intelligent girl. There is only one problem. Every time we are alone she asks me about going all the way.

I feel that I am mature enough to know when I love someone enough to go that far, but she keeps bugging me about it. Please give me your advice. We are both 15. —Disappointed in Pennsylvania

(A.) This girl may not realize that her talk disturbs you. She may think it is what you want to hear. She may think it is what all boys want to hear. She may have had some earlier experiences that gave her a false idea of boys in general.

Ask her to drop the subject.

TOTALLY: (Q.) This may sound dumb to you, but it's very important to me.

I'm going with this boy Ken and all he likss to do is French kiss. I totally don't like to. He thinks I'm strange. Am I right or am I strange? He's 15, I'm 14. —Pondering in Washington, D.C.

(A.) It is not dumb to dislike being asked to do something you consider too personal, or even unsanitary. To some people French kissing can be either or both of these.

If Ken knows you dislike it and still tries to get you to do it, he is displaying a lack of respect for you.

You are not strange, but you may not be the right girl for Ken and he may not be the right boy for you.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Opening lead — 5 ♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

This is a very sad week in the column. We have to chronicle another death. British internationalist and 1955 world champion Adam Meridith, who had lived in New York since 1956, died in January.

Adam wasn't a great technician, but he was a great psychologist and a man who could get into the bidding with almost nothing.

His three-heart bid as West was typical of his swashbuckling style as was his later jump to six hearts that helped get his vulnerable opponents all the way to seven spades. East liked his ace of clubs and doubled whereupon South ran to seven notrump.

Adam doubled that one and was faced with a lead problem.

That is, it would have been a lead problem for most players. It wasn't for him. He reasoned that South had to be well prepared for hearts, that if East had a spade trick it would keep and that the club suit was the one to lead. He did and South was down two on a hand that would make against any other lead.

Onteora's New Architects May Save $180,000 on Renovation

BOICEVILLE — The Onteora Central School District may have saved itself $180,000, if an architect's estimates are correct.

A spokesman for the New York City architectural firm of Kaminsky and Shiffer told the Board of Education Wednesday night that renovations to the junior-senior high school necessary to bring the facility up to state standards should cost only $8,500, not $189,000 that was suggested by another architect.

The renovation of the junior-senior high school was one of the major aspects of the recent controversy which saw Dr. Frank Marlow, Superintendent of Schools, suspended from his post by the Board of Education. It was determined earlier this year that the project was undertaken without final state approval, and it was believed that the entire building would have to be rewired in order for the district to receive state aid for the project.

At the urging to Dr. John Keough, who served as acting superintendent during Marlow's suspension and then returned to his duties as business administrator when Marlow was restored to his post by the Commissioner of Education, the board hired another architect to give a second opinion on the renovation project.

That second opinion turned out to be considerably more encouraging than the first. Inspectors with the New York City architectural firm found a number of significant items necessary for state approval.

Among the items eliminated was an acoustical drop ceiling that would have cost $35,000. Kaminsky and Shiffer determined that there is nothing in the stated education department regulations which require such an item.

The architects also determined that electrical wiring in the building is sufficient to meet state standards, and need not be replaced, and that a proposal to relamp 40 classrooms is not necessary because "all the classrooms meet or surpass state lighting requirements."

One problem which remains involves a new art classroom in the high school. It was initially determined that the district would either have to air condition the room or declassify it as a classroom. The New York City architects, however, said that installation of a new, manually operated skylight, at a cost of $7,000, would bring the room up to state standards.

The architects also noted that several exit lights and signs would have to be replaced, at an estimated cost of $500.

The fee for the second architectural study is $1,300, which is not included in the new $8,500 renovation pricetag.

Board of Education member Sam Mercer said Thursday that a spokesman for the state education department has already given his assurances that $8,500 in renovation work, as outlined by the architectural firm, will be sufficient to meet state specifications. A spokesman for the school district added that with final SED approval the district will be eligible for approximately $47,000 in state aid for the original renovation project, which has heretofore been withheld.

Dr. Keough, who spent Thursday in Albany seeking approval from education department officials, said the $8,500 project will also be eligible for state aid.

The school board, by a unanimous vote, passed a resolution Wednesday night stating that the "non-conforming items" will be corrected during the 1976-77 school year. The money for the project, said Keough, will be submitted to the voters this Spring as part of the total budget package for 1976-77 and, if approved, will be awarded on a competitive bid basis.

The school board also complimented Keough for his $180,000 suggestion that the district hire another architect ... a suggestion that may pay unexpected dividends to district taxpayers.

Setting Cancer Drive's Goal

Lee Meriwether, National Crusade Education Chairman for the American Cancer Society, is flanked by Ulster County Unit President Dr. Harri Janssen (l) and Dr. James R. Clarkin, vice president, in setting the goal this year at $101,000 for Ulster County. The Cancer Crusade hopes to raise $4 million in New York State for its three-prongsd program of research, education, and service to cancer patients.

Kiwanis Honoring Canada

KINGSTON— Members of the Kiwanis Club of Kingston will mark our nation's traditional friendliness with Canada at their April 28 luncheon with guest speaker Guy Verreault of Quebec City.

The City of Kingston has joined in remembrance of Canada-United States Goodwill Week, proclaimed nationally and locally from April 25 through May 1.

April 28 is the anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement in 1817, the sole legal basis for 5,000 miles of unfortified boundary between the two nations.

GUY VERREAULT

It virtually demilitarizes the boundary by calling for a limitation of naval vessels on the waterways betwsen the countries and instructing those vessels deemed necessary to interfere in no way with peaceful passage of merchant ships of either country.

This agreement can bs terminated by a simple six-month notice on the part of either the United States and Canada, a concrete example of the fact that the most tenuous of international treaties can survive where trust is involved,and the most complex and binding agreements are worthless scraps of paper where no trust is involved

The Kiwanis International became involved in U.S.-Canada relations when in 1923 President Warren G. Hardin became the first U.S. president to visit Canada while in office. Harding, a Kiwanian, spoke at Stanley Park, Vancouver, British Columbia on the friendship which existed between the two countries, and two years after his death fellow Kiwanians from both sides of the border erected the Harding International Goodwill Memorial at Stanley Park.

The Kiwanis Club found this memorial an inspiration for 36 Kiwanis peace markers built in later years, all but two located at principal ports of entry between the two nations.

Each bears this inscription:"This unfortified boundary line between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America should quicken the remembrance of the more than a century old friendship between these two countries- a lesson of peace to all nations."

Kingston Kiwanis speaker Guy Verreault has been involved in public relations and publicity promotion for the past 16 years. Born in Quebec City, he was PR officer for the Hydro Quebec at the Manicouagan Dam Project, the largest multiple arch dam in the world, and is now associated with the Organizing Committee for the 1976 Olympic games at Montreal.
